James W. Husted having received a majority of all the votes given, the Clerk declared he was duly elected Speaker of the Assembly.

The Clerk appointed Messrs. Alvord and Brooks to conduct the Speaker elect to the chair. On taking the chair he addressed the House as follows:

Gentlemen of the Assembly: For the confidence expressed by the vote just announced I sincerely thank you. To possess this confidence of my associates is the highest of honors. To prove worthy of it is a constant inspiration to the faithful performance of duty. It will be my earnest aim to administer the responsibilities of your presiding officer in such a manner as to show that your trust has not been misplaced. In this purpose I shall confidently rely upon your cordial and undivided support. It is your province to legislate; it is the province of the chair to direct the course of your legislation in the channel of wholesome influences, and by orderly methods in conformity with your rules and with parliamentary practice. In the legitimate exercise of this authority, guided by your counsel, it will be my pleasure, as it will be my duty, to advance your views and aid you in promoting only such just and salutary measures as in their object deserves consideration, and in their perfected form will merit the commendation of the great constituency we represent.

If the evenly balanced division of your body shall incite to more than ordinary vigilance and attention, it should make you none the less courteous and considerate. However the people differ in party names, they are equally concerned in good legislation and good government. As their representatives it is for you to share their spirit and embody their purpose. The centennial era of the republic has awakened patriotic memories and stimulated patriotic feelings. To-day we stand at the threshold of the second century of our State, and the associations may well inspire a similar sentiment of honorable State pride and ambition. The past, with its arduous struggles, its varying days of gloom and glory, its constitutional progress, its brilliant record of political, social and scientific achievement, is stamped upon the historic page. The future has its untried possibilities. The present is ours, and its immediate responsibilities we can neither overlook nor evade. We meet to-day as the representatives of nearly five millions of people, charged with the momentous interests of a commonwealth which is an empire in itself, and we are solemnly bound to protect and promote them. Prominent among these interests which demand your attention, is the enforcement of a rigid retrenchment in the cities and towns of the State, in order that the heavy load of taxation may be reduced. Our metropolis is weighed down with the enormous annual expenditure of thirty millions. Its budget of official salaries alone swells up to ten millions. These inordinate figures tell how grievously the people are burdened. The chief evil in our State affairs is oppressive local taxation. It will be your commanding duty to relieve it. Another subject requiring your earnest consideration and action is the wide-spread official misconduct in corporate bodies, and the urgent importance of effective measures to secure a strict accountability. The public has been shocked by the frequent disclosures of such wrongs. Thousands have thus been defrauded of their hard earnings and of the provision they had made for their families. No duty is more vital than that of establishing adequate safeguards against this prostitution of sacred trusts. Other objects of State concern, which need not be indicated, will press upon you. Nor are your voice and influence limited to State matters alone. You cannot be insensible of the great questions which so deeply affect the welfare of our common country. As the foremost commercial State of the Union, New York is especially interested in honest money, and in the inviolable preservation of the public faith; and it must firmly resist any insidious measure which would injure the public credit, make dishonesty the rule of dealing, and plunge us anew and still deeper into the evils of a depreciated and uncertain currency from which we have been so steadily emerging.

Gentlemen of the House, I welcome you to your honorable duties. Each one of you bears the commission of an immediate constituency which has given you its confidence, but in a higher sense each also represents the State. To legislate for a commonwealth so great as ours, with its vast and varied interests, is an object worthy of your best ambition; to meet its requirements wisely and well demands your best efforts. Faithfully discharging the obligations which rest upon you, when you finish your labors and leave this hall, you will carry the reward of an approving conscience and the grateful recognition of the people.

The House in like manner then proceeded to the election of Clerk of the Assembly, with the following result:

TAXATION.

The tax levy for 1877 was at the rate of three and one-sixth mills. The Comptroller estimates that for the next fiscal year a levy of two and three-fourths mills will be sufficient. This is the lowest annual rate of the last sixteen years, and shows the rapid progress which has recently been made toward a sound and healthy condition of the State finances. It is in itself an earnest appeal to the Legislature for continued economy in public expenditures, and for great caution in making appropriations. If the local authorities will pursue a similar course, the people of the State will soon be relieved to a great extent from the burden which has so long oppressed them.

Many well-grounded complaints have been made of irregular and unreasonable assessments and unequal distribution of the taxes. The wisdom of man never has been and probably never will be able to devise a system wholly free from such defects. It is, nevertheless, the duty of the Legislature to remedy them so far as practicable; but, after all is done that can be done, the truth will remain that the only relief from heavy taxation will be found in the cutting off of all unnecessary expense. No stronger incentives to this course should be required than are now found in the depression of business and the difficulty of making payments.

In this connection I note also the great wrongs which exist in the local affairs of towns and villages. There are too many small offices in the towns, the incumbents of which can only be paid by illegal or exorbitant fees, and petty exactions. Needless criminal complaints and legal proceedings are instituted that constables, justices and jailors may receive the fees of such prosecutions. Services performed and not performed, are charged at double rates, and often several times. Faithful town auditors might cut down these bills, but often shrink from their full duty, and so by the collusion, or neglect of those who should prevent it, the people are plundered to a degree even beyond that detected in the larger cities. Town and county taxes might be much lessened if this evil could be reached, and to this end I suggest that you seek to cut off superfluous offices, reduce these extravagant fees, charge the expense of local criminal proceedings upon the county and provide for their taxation by the county judge or some other competent officer. By these or kindred measures I believe an immense aggregate saving might be effected in money as well as morals.

PAYMENT OF THE BOUNTY DEBT.

One of the most gratifying events of the year has been the final extinguishment of the Bounty Debt, which became due on the seventh of April last. The balance of the debt remaining due on that day, after deducting the amount paid in advance and all the exchanges which had been made of securities in the sinking fund, amounted to $2,040,000, the whole of which was duly deposited in the Manhattan Bank, the place of payment designated in the bonds, and notice was published that interest upon the debt would cease from that date. Previous to the close of the fiscal year on the thirtieth day of September last, the whole debt, principal and interest, had been paid, with the exception of $130,000, which had not been presented. It is probable that a considerable portion of this sum may never be called for. The amount, however, remains on deposit to meet it. The debt has been a heavy burden upon the tax-payers of the State, the whole amount paid by them during the twelve years which it had to run being $43,270,337.47. Its complete and final payment is a matter for congratulation.

PAYMENT OF THE GENERAL FUND DEBT.

From the moneys and securities in the sinking fund of the General Fund debt, the sum of $2,165,543.71 has been paid, and the General Fund debt to that extent extinguished. There remains to be paid the sum of $800,000, which does not become due until the first day of July next, when it will be paid, and the General Fund debt, which has so long been in existence, will also be fully extinguished, except a small amount invested for the payment of Indian annuities.

CANAL DEBT.

On the thirtieth of September last the canal debt, less the balances in the sinking fund, amounted to $8,630,016.29. Of this sum $880,000 became due on the first day of December last, and was paid from the Canal Debt-Sinking Funds, leaving the total amount of the debt, at this date, $7,750,016.29. But for the unfortunate maladministration of the canals, and the wasting of their revenues in former years, the canal debt would also have been entirely extinguished, and we should have the satisfaction of announcing that the State was entirely free from debt.

BUSINESS AND REVENUES OF THE CANALS.

The details of the receipts and expenditures upon the canals, and the statement in regard to the canal debt and sinking fund, will be found in the report of the Auditor of the Canal Department.

In my last annual message I had occasion to refer to the heavy losses of the forwarders and boatmen on the canals, caused by the general depression of business, and the extraordinary competition of the railways, especially during the season of 1876. During that year the crops were short, the volume of business was very small, and the rates of freight insufficient to pay expenses. It is very gratifying to be able to state that, during the past season, a marked improvement has taken place. The competition of the railways has been less ruinous, the crops have been unusually abundant, the business upon the canals has increased to such an extent that all the available boats have been brought into service, and full and remunerative rates of freight have been freely paid. A season of greater prosperity for forwarders and boatmen has not been known in many years. In view of the depression and losses of 1876, and not anticipating the revival which has taken place in 1877, the tolls were reduced to an extremely low rate for the last year. Consequently the revenues have not kept pace with the increase of business. The gross amount of receipts, from all sources, was $1,053,361.01. The expenditures for superintendence, collection, and ordinary repairs, amounted to $1,650,329.68, showing an excess of receipts over expenditures, for the fiscal year, amounting to the trifling sum of $3,031.33 to be paid into the sinking fund. This leaves a large deficiency to be supplied by taxation. At least a one-fourth mill tax will be required for that purpose.

The gross tolls for the calendar year 1876 were $1,340,003.30, the gross tolls for the calendar year 1877 were $880,000, showing a falling off of $460,003.30. This shows a lower amount of receipts for tolls than has been known within the last forty-five years. As the Constitution limits the amount which can be expended during this year to the gross amount received during the last year, it will be seen from the above statement that there is an absolute necessity that the expenditures should be reduced, during the present year, very largely. The only hope of accomplishing this necessary reduction is, in my judgment, immediate adoption of the change of administration provided for in the amendment of the Constitution, by the appointment at the earliest practicable day, of a Superintendent of Public Works, whose duty it will be to devise a new plan of administration and a thorough reorganization. By making this change, it is believed that the expenditures for the current year can surely be brought below the gross amount of revenues for the last year, and the service upon the canals improved in every respect. Most of the evils, waste and corruption which have disgraced the management of the canals in former years, arose from the systematic extravagance and fraud long prevalent upon them, and which had grown into monstrous proportions, when they were arrested by the thorough investigation and reform inaugurated in 1875. All experience has shown that the navigation of the canals is not improved, but is actually damaged by large revenues, leading to wasteful, careless and corrupt expenditures. This is illustrated by the experience of the past season. The expenditures have been much lower than for many years previous, but in no one of them have the canals been in such complete order, and so free from breaks and interruptions to navigation. And yet the administration, during 1877, has been under the old cumbersome and expensive system. It is the opinion of many well-informed men that by placing the administration under one responsible head who will adopt a new system, cutting off all abuses, the canals can be successfully managed for one-half the expense incurred during the past year. This expectation may be too sanguine and it will be imprudent to act upon it before it has been tried, but I trust it may be very nearly realized. The extraordinary and gratifying results which have been reached in the State prisons by the faithful and efficient supervision of one responsible head give reason to hope for similar results under like management of the canals. The legislation necessary to carry the amendment of the Constitution into effect was adopted by the last Legislature, but at too late a period to permit a superintendent to adopt a new plan and perfect a new organization before the opening of navigation. I trust that no unnecessary delay will now occur in carrying into effect the amendment which has become vital to the prosperity, if not to the very existence, of the canals.

The improvement in canal transportation in the last season did not commence until about the first of July. From that date till the close of the season the number of boats which could be brought into use was found insufficient to meet the demands upon them. It is confidently expected that the improvement will continue throughout the whole of the coming season, and that new boats will be built sufficient to supply this deficiency. If this expectation shall be realized the canals will show that they have passed safely through the crisis of financial disaster, and that they will henceforth be able to meet the requirements of the Constitution, and at the same time secure the prosperity of those who navigate them. To say they cannot do this is a confession of weakness and decay which their friends will be unwilling to make.

THE LATERAL CANALS.

A reference to the comparative table in the Auditor's report giving the income and payments of each of the canals shows that of all the canals in the State only the Erie earned more than its expenses, and that while that yielded the small revenue of $84,840.88 over expenses, nearly all the others failed to produce a half or even a fourth of the sums expended to keep them in repair.

All the laterals south of the Erie except the Cayuga and Seneca are practically abandoned. No further expenditures should be made upon them. Those north of the Erie, required by the Constitution to be kept, give results of a very discouraging nature.

The Oswego canal shows receipts of $20,473.40, expenditures of $60,994.29; the Black River receipts of $15,711, expenditures of $54,381.23; the Champlain receipts of $63,161.77, and expenditures of $214,339.81.

STATE PRISONS.

A great improvement to be noted in the affairs of the State is that shown in the management of the State prisons. The number of convicts in the three prisons on the 30th of September, 1877, was as follows:

Auburn,	1,388
Clinton	566
Sing Sing.	1,641
Total.	3,595

The total number on September 30, 1876, was 3,509, showing an increase for the present year of eighty-six. The advances from the treasury exceeded the receipts from prison earnings for the fiscal year ending September thirtieth last by the sum of $359,688.08. This deficit, as given in my last annual message, was $704,379.85, showing a decrease of the annual draft upon the State treasury of $334,691.77. As the present Superintendent did not enter upon his official duties until the 17th day of February, 1877, and had, therefore, been in control little more than seven months at the close of the fiscal year, this result is the more creditable. Of the actual deficit the first five months, during which the prisons were managed under the old system, developed by far the greater part. It is but fair to add that the returns of Sing Sing, formerly the most costly of all our prisons, for the last three months of the calendar year show an actual revenue to the State treasury over all expenditures. These figures furnish strong proof of the wisdom of the new system of managing our public institutions through a single responsible head, and inspire the hope that in a short time the prisons of the State, so long a costly burden to the tax-payers, will become self-sustaining. An equal advantage of the present system already obtained is found in the better discipline and greater industry maintained in the several prisons; morally, far more beneficial to their inmates than the license and irregularities of former times.

In connection with the penal system of the State, I ask that you consider the overcrowded condition of our State prisons, largely the result of excessive sentences. Some years since an act was passed, allowing very considerable deductions from the terms of convicts whose behavior should be satisfactory during their confinement. This law has much improved the discipline in our prisons, and has worked well in all respects. A study of the commitments since its passage, however, leads to the conclusion that our criminal courts, especially in the city of New York, take account of these deductions in passing sentences, and by imposing longer terms, really defeat the object of the commutation act. The extreme penalties of the law are often inflicted for first offenses of every grade. It is not at all uncommon to find in the State prisons lads of sixteen or eighteen who, for a really trivial fault, upon their plea of guilty to an indictment of some grave crime, have been sent to prison for twenty years. Such boys are too often, although innocent, led to plead guilty to crimes they never committed, by the persuasions of indolent or unprincipled lawyers, who having robbed them of their money seek thus to avoid the trouble of trials. Some such convicts are able to bring their cases to the notice of the Executive, with proofs which justify the exercise of clemency, but the great majority drag out wretched lives in prison, emerging at last useless to themselves and the community. It seems that some steps should be taken to prevent this injustice, and I ask that you consider the matter in connection with the subject of penalties.

STATE REFORMATORY AT ELMIRA.

The State reformatory at Elmira approaches completion, and now contains about 140 convicts. The Legislature, at its last session, passed an act giving the board of managers wide discretion in the detention, release and supervision of the criminals committed to their charge. Under this act, it was hoped by those who had given much attention to the subject, the maximum of moral improvement in youthful convicts might be attained. The system is, of course, an experiment. It has been often advocated, but never before so thoroughly tried in this State. The reformatory is believed to be at present so administered as to insure the success of the experiment, if success is possible. There have been expended upon the buildings and grounds, fittings and furniture of the reformatory during the past year, $80,000, leaving an unexpended balance of the appropriation made last winter of $105,000, which the managers estimate will be sufficient to complete the building. It will then accommodate 500 convicts, and may furnish needed relief to our crowded State prisons.

UNEMPLOYED LABOR.

The depression in all branches of trade, business and manufacture, and the wreck of our too numerous railroad, mining, iron and milling ventures, have thrown out of employ a vast number of laboring men, who, without fault of their own, are now suffering extreme want. While it is true that legislation can do little for their relief, it is well to understand clearly the causes which have led to their distress. In 1860 there was no complaint of lack of employment or scant wages. The money of the country was specie or paper convertible into it at will. The currency was substantially steady and uniform, as was the condition of all branches of trade and industry, and the prices of labor, and of the necessities of life. The laws of trade regulated and controlled the entire energy of our community.

Immediately after the commencement of the civil war in 1861, the general government began an inflation of the currency by the issue of paper money. This soon led to the suspension of specie payments, and, consequently, the volume of the currency demanded by trade had no regulator. Within three or four years the volume of our currency was swollen to more than double the amount in use in 1860 and 1861. The inevitable result followed; a rapid increase of the price of all commodities, an unnatural stimulation of trade and manufactures, and a necessary increase in the wages of mechanics, artisans and laborers. At the same time another great evil was strongly developed. Individuals and corporations engaged in the various branches of manufacture taking advantage of the necessities of the government rushed to Congress and, by every means in their power, procured each for its own benefit the levy of what were called protective duties, under the false pretense of raising revenue for the government, but really to compel consumers to pay exorbitant prices for the favored articles thus protected. Under the wing and stimulus of this so-called protection new enterprises were undertaken; new and extensive factories built; new and needless railways projected and undertaken; new mines and foundries opened, and armies of laborers allured by high wages to these enterprises from fields of agriculture and other sober and rational employments of life. The few notes of warning raised against the certain consequences of this wild overaction were unheeded. Extravagance of expenditure, the absence of every thing like frugality and economy obtained in all directions. The empty and delusive bubble thus raised could not endure, and although kept afloat by the whole power of the government so long as it was possible, it met at last the inevitable day of doom. Imaginary fortunes vanished in a moment, ill-advised railway schemes, mines, mills and factories, were suspended, and tens of thousands of innocent and unfortunate laborers were left without employment or the means of subsistence. Instead of the high wages by which they had been enticed from other occupations to these enterprises, they received no wages at all. It is easier to discover the cause of this distress, than to point out the manner of its relief. There can be but one permanent and effectual remedy. That is to return as speedily as possible to the condition of things that existed before the road to ruin was entered upon; by means of a return to specie payments, a sound and stable currency, and the reduction of the tariff to a strictly revenue standard.

Under the influences of these measures all branches of industry will resume their old and accustomed regularity and success. All departments of labor will call for employes, to whom such wages will be paid as the business will warrant, and the parties can agree upon. If a surplus of unemployed laborers still remains, there are open to all in this great country countless millions of fertile acres of land upon which every industrious man can be sure of securing for himself and family at least a comfortable subsistence. One of the greatest evils resulting to the laboring men, from the false and delusive appearances which have been displayed before them, is that they have been induced to leave the safe, peaceful and independent walks of agriculture, to congregate in the large cities, and there to watch and wait for something that they fancy might yield them larger returns than they could hope for from the cultivation of the soil. But, by following faithfully and earnestly the road here indicated, it will not be very long before business and trade will be restored to their natural channels, and laborers receive full employment with fair wages. All efforts to delay this result will do no good, but infinite harm. The worst thing that could possibly happen to business and to labor, would be any thing approaching a return to the unsound and vicious condition of things which has so long prevailed, and from which we are now slowly emerging. It can have no possible result but another downfall and a more wide-spread ruin. If, in the meantime, any legislation is found necessary and practicable for the protection of the laboring classes against frauds and wrongs on the part of the individuals or corporations by whom they are employed, it should be promptly undertaken with a proper sense of the importance of the great interests involved.

RIOTS OF JULY.

Times of distress like those above referred to, never failed to open a wide field to a class of agitators and demagogues, who, whilst declining to work themselves, make it their business to go amongst honest men who would labor if they could find work, and endeavor to stir up strife and discord. During the last summer those agitators, reinforced from every large city in Europe, were unusually active and malignant. Spreading themselves all over the country, they endeavored to create discontent among all those who had employment and to stir up the evil passions of those who had not. Combinations were formed for strikes on all the principal railway lines and in all the large mining and manufacturing establishments. These efforts culminated in wild scenes of riot and bloodshed in several States. Like scenes were threatened in this State on the first of July and broke out in acts of open violence on the 21st of that month. The trains upon the Erie and New York Central railways were forcibly stopped, the depots, freight-houses and rolling stock taken possession of by violence and threatened with destruction by fire; honest and innocent laborers and employes who refused to abandon their work and their places were forced from the trains or driven from the shops. Excited crowds of men were collected at Albany, at Syracuse, at Buffalo, at Hornellsville, at Corning, at Elmira, and the peace of the city of New York was seriously threatened. In this condition of things it was impossible to hesitate as to the course to be pursued by the Chief Magistrate of the State. Much as all men are dependent upon the laws for protection there is no one class more constantly in need of it over whom its protecting power should be more constantly exercised than the poor and laboring. And, greatly as our sympathies might be exercised in their behalf, when wicked and evil disposed men undertook even in their name to set the government at defiance and to overturn the laws made for their protection, it was incumbent upon the authorities at once to vindicate the majesty of the law and make its power felt. Seeing the magnitude of the disturbance and the danger of its spreading over the whole State, the entire force of the National Guard was ordered under arms to hold itself ready to move at a moment's notice. The manner in which the military forces of the State responded to this order was worthy of all praise. The Fifty-fourth regiment of Rochester, the Seventy-fourth of Buffalo, the One hundredth and tenth battalion and battery of Elmira, and the Twenty-third regiment of Brooklyn were first ordered to Hornellsville, where the disturbance commenced. The Ninth regiment of New York, the Tenth and Twenty-fifth of Albany, the Troy Citizens' corps and the Tibbits corps of Troy, with some separate companies, were ordered to Albany. The Albany Burgesses corps and the Jackson corps volunteered their services and were accepted. The Forty-ninth regiment of Auburn, the Sixty-fifth of Buffalo, and several separate companies were ordered to Buffalo, the Fiftieth battalion of Ithaca was ordered to Elmira, and the Eighth regiment of New York, to Syracuse. The several regiments, battalions and companies above mentioned, moved to the respective points designated, with extraordinary rapidity and good order. Their behavior throughout was highly creditable to their discipline and training as citizen soldiers.

One of the most dangerous modes of interfering with the operating of the railways was the tearing up of the tracks and the placing of obstructions upon them for the purpose of wrecking trains, thereby imperiling the lives of passengers and destroying the property in process of transportation. Fortunately, the Legislature, at its last session, passed an act inflicting severe penalties upon parties guilty of this monstrous crime. Along with the movements of the troops above mentioned, I issued a proclamation reciting the provisions of the said act, and offering a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of any person guilty of its violation, and calling upon all magistrates, sheriffs, and district attorneys to be vigilant in the prosecution of offenders. The measures thus taken proved entirely effectual. Within one week from the outbreak of the disturbances they were entirely suppressed, peace and good order restored, and the military forces dismissed and returned to their homes, without bloodshed or serious destruction of property. The accounts for the services, transportation and subsistence of the troops have been carefully examined and audited by the Adjutant-General, and with a few trifling exceptions, paid. The aggregate amount, it is believed, will not exceed $230,000.

Only a few applications have been made for the reward offered in the proclamation above referred to. The offer of the reward having fully accomplished its immediate object, I have, in view of the convening of the Legislature, withdrawn it. I recommend, however, some increase of the usual appropriation from which rewards for the apprehension of criminals are paid.

THE NATIONAL GUARD.

At the present time the National Guard consists of eight divisions, fourteen brigades, one regiment and eleven separate troops of Cavalry, one battalion and eleven separate batteries of Artillery, and twenty-four regiments, seven battalions and twenty-one separate companies of Infantry; in all comprising 1,152 commissioned officers, and 18,883 non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates, making an aggregate force of 20,035.

The report of the Adjutant-General, to which I invite your careful attention, shows in detail the number and organization of the military forces of the State. It also gives the details in full of their operations during the exciting riots in July last. The discipline and efficiency of the forces were illustrated in a most gratifying manner during the severe trials through which they were called to pass. Ordered suddenly to duty, without time for suitable preparations for a campaign, they moved without a murmur, and with extraordinary rapidity to their assigned positions, and their behavior throughout was in the highest degree creditable to them. The events and the results show the necessity of an efficient and well-organized military force of its own, in every State that would maintain its independence and the supremacy of its laws, without calling upon the federal government. Whilst the services to which I have referred prove the general excellence of our organization in this State, they also disclose certain points in regard to which improvements are possible and important. Several regiments and brigades were found to contain very few men but a full number of officers. These have been undergoing disbandment to a large extent, by which efficiency will be gained and expense saved. The Adjutant-General urges in his report, the importance of organizing a separate company in each county where there is no regiment or battalion. Such companies, with full numbers and good officers, would be at all times available at the call of the sheriffs of the several counties in case of local disturbances, and it was found by experience during the last summer, that companies of this class performed excellent service and were easily formed into battalions or attached to other organizations. I cordially approve the recommendation of the Adjutant-General in this respect, and also such increased appropriations as will enable every enlisted man in the force to be fully equipped without personal expense to himself.

It will be seen from the foregoing statement that the money raised by taxation for the schools of the State, amounts to much more than double the sum required to pay the entire expenses of the State government, executive, legislative, judicial, civil and military. The expenditure of so large an amount of public money for any purpose, is liable to lead to great abuses, as has been shown in all our past experience. In my judgment, a very great wrong has already grown up in connection with our otherwise excellent system. It lies in the principle of applying large amounts of the moneys raised by taxation, to the support of high schools, and instruction in all the sciences and higher branches of study required in the learned professions. I can find no excuse for raising money by general taxation for such purposes. The only good reason which can be urged for taxing one class of citizens for the education of the children of another class, is the necessity of giving to the children of all classes a sufficient common school education to enable them to understand their duties, and exercise their rights as citizens of a free country governed by the popular voice. When we go beyond this and take from one man the money necessary to educate the children of another man in the arts and sciences, we perpetrate an act of injustice under the forms of law. What is worse than this, instead of educating the masses of children so as to prepare them for the pursuits and industries upon which they must depend for a living, we educate them in such a way as to make them discontented with their condition, unfit to discharge its duties in a manner most beneficial to their own interests, and take away the strong incentives which impel those who are really able and worthy to win for themselves high positions in learning and usefulness. When the State has given to all the children a good common school education, it should there leave them to their own resources, and to follow such callings in life as their capacities fit them for. To go beyond this, is to injure rather than benefit them. These and several other suggestions upon this subject were referred to in my last annual message, with a caution to avoid any abuses of our school system which would bring it into disrepute, and loosen the hold which it now has upon the favor of the community. I commend these suggestions to your consideration.

COLLEGES AND ACADEMIES.

The system of higher education in the colleges, academies and high schools continues in successful operation.

The details of the condition and working of these institutions, for the last year, will be fully exhibited in the annual report of the Regents of the University, to be transmitted to the Legislature early in the session.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS.

Among the changes made in our Constitution, in 1874, were many restricting the powers of the Legislature in certain cases. These limitations are so constantly liable to infringement, in the hurry of legislative business, that I deem it proper to call special attention to the amendments themselves.

Section 18 of article 3 provides that "The Legislature shall not pass a private or local bill in any of the following cases :

"Changing the names of persons.

"Laying out, opening, altering, working or discontinuing roads, highways or alleys, or for draining swamps or other low lands.

"Locating or changing county seats.

"Providing for changes of venue in civil or criminal cases.

"Incorporating villages.

"Providing for election of members of boards of supervisors.

"Selecting, drawing, summoning or empanneling grand or petit jurors.

"Regulating the rate of interest on money.

"The opening and conducting of elections, or designating places of voting.

"Creating, increasing or decreasing fees, per centage or allowances of public officers, during the term for which said officers are elected or appointed.

"Granting to any corporation, association or individual the right to lay down railroad tracks.

"Granting to any private corporation, association or individual any exclusive privilege, immunity or franchise whatever.

"Providing for building bridges and chartering companies for such purposes, except on the Hudson river below Waterford, and on the East river, or over the waters forming a part of the boundaries of the State."

Section 19 of article 3 is as follows: "The Legislature shall neither audit nor allow any private claim or account against the State, but may appropriate money to pay such claims as shall have been audited and allowed according to law."

Section 24 of article 3 provides that "The Legislature shall not, nor shall the common council of any city, nor any board of supervisors grant any extra compensation to any public officer, servant, agent or contractor."

The aim of these changes was to limit legislative action in matters of which it is impossible that the Legislature should have accurate knowledge. Of the great number of bills which I was unable to approve at the last session, a majority infringed some of these restrictive provisions, and as this doubtless arose from oversight, I have thought proper to insert them here.

GENERAL LEGISLATION IN APPROPRIATION BILLS.

I refer again to the very objectionable practice which has prevailed of enacting general legislation in appropriation bills. It places legislative provisions where no one ever expects to find them, and puts them beyond the reach of disapproval by the Governor, unless he vetoes the whole bill in which they are contained. There was less of this mischief in the appropriation bills of last year than had become usual, but there was too much of it. It should be discontinued altogether.

VILLAGE CHARTER AMENDMENTS.

For some years past it has been the policy of the Constitution to lessen local and special legislation. I need not dwell on the great extent to which this class of statutes had swelled at the time the people, by amending the Constitution, sought to diminish it. The settled purpose of the people is to commit this entire subject to general laws. Yet localities still attempt to defeat this aim and to return to the old and evil path of special charters and special provisions. Although villages cannot now be so chartered, and the general act provides that those organized before the Constitution was amended may take the benefit of the new system, efforts are often made to amend the old charters by special acts and thereby secure a new special charter under the guise of an amendment. In nearly every case such amendments are directly in conflict with the policy and provisions of the general statutes, and seek by means more or less unworthy to gain local advantage at the expense of general policy. Careful reflection on this subject has convinced me that far less evils will result from a refusal to enact or approve the mass of amendments proposed to these special village charters, and the reference of the whole subject of village grievances to the general laws provided for their regulation. This course I earnestly urge you to take, believing that the great relief it will give to the overburdened files of the Legislature and executive, will more than compensate for any occasional friction in the adjustment of local affairs.

THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

The vast and increasing population and business of the city of New York, its position as the commercial metropolis of the western world, the rapid extension of its limits, its large corporations and institutions of various kinds, its political power, its immense trade and its financial and commercial interests, render its proper, economical and efficient government a problem of the highest importance, and of very serious difficulty. About twenty years ago, the embarrassments which had arisen in the local government led first to the establishment of legislative commissions to control various departments, and finally transferred to the State capitol nearly all the appropriate powers of the common council. Since then at every session of the Legislature the Senate and Assembly have, to a large extent, presented the appearance of a board of aldermen and assistant aldermen for the city of New York. The result has been disastrous in the extreme. Within that time upwards of twenty-four hundred laws have been passed relating to the city. These have been, upon some subjects, so confused and conflicting, that the court of last resort has pronounced it impossible to ascertain and declare their true meaning. The enormous extent of corruption and plunder perpetrated under these laws is too well known to require repetition. It stands out as the darkest blot upon the records of the city and the State. Of the oppressive debt which hangs over the city, the amount of eighty-five millions of dollars was put upon it by legislative acts, for which the city itself never applied. Of the 2,400 acts above referred to, the majority of them will be found to be, or to cover mere schemes for plunder, or to change official power from one class of men to another. At the last session of the Legislature, over 150 bills relating to the city were introduced into the two houses, and a majority of them were passed. Some of them originally contained very good provisions for remedying evils which had become intolerable, but in their passage through the Legislature there had been attached to all such provisions amendments which were intended to keep up the old and corrupt system, and which could not fail of producing more injury than benefit. Many of them were also in flagrant violation of the Constitution. For these reasons, and in the full conviction that it was worse than useless to pile upon the city of New York any more laws of the description of those which had been passed during the last twenty years, I returned all bills of this character without my approval. The question, "what now is to be done?" remains an open and important one. The whole subject of municipal reform was under discussion for many months by a commission composed of very able and learned men appointed by my predecessor, and their report was made to the Legislature at its last session. The plan of government proposed by the commission involved, however, certain extensive amendments to the Constitution. These amendments were approved by the last Legislature. Under the Constitution, they must be approved by you also before they can be submitted to the people. If you see fit to do so, they will be referred to the people for action at the next general election. In the event that you withhold such approval, it will remain a grave question for the Legislature to determine what should be done.

In my message returning to the Assembly the bill entitled "An act to secure better local government for the city of New York," I stated that in my opinion the great want of the city was a charter.

I am still of the opinion that the only effectual remedy for the evils under which the city suffers, will be a careful and well considered charter in the nature of a constitution, organizing a local government with a strong and responsible executive head, with a city legislature composed of two houses, and clothed with all the powers of local legislation, subject to veto by the mayor. I believe that such a charter may be easily framed, although it would be out of place to attempt to set forth the details of it in this message. When once fully and fairly considered and adopted, it is believed that the advantages of it would be so apparent as to induce steady adherence to it, and to the local government established under it rather than to return to the dangerous experiment of passing local laws for the city of New York by members of the Legislature, three-fourths of whom know little of the wants of the city. In the meantime, if the Legislature shall adopt any measures relating to the city which promise real and substantial relief from its extravagant expenses and oppressive taxation, and free from the evils which have marred so many previous acts, they will meet my cordial approval.

HARBORMASTERS AND PORT WARDENS.

The large amount annually paid to harbormasters and port wardens in New York, is a direct tax upon the commerce of that port. It has been suggested to me by many persons engaged in the shipping trade, that all the services required by those officers might easily be performed by the police of the city or through the dock department, without any material increase of expense to the city, and thus exempt commerce from the heavy tax now imposed upon it. I am informed that New York is the only port where such charges are made, that nothing of the kind is known in any of the cities which assume to be her commercial rivals. It is, moreover, quite doubtful whether the legality of the charges made can be maintained under the recent decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States.

I submit the matter to your consideration.

EXCISE LAW.

The state of our excise laws seems to demand attention. Recently our highest court was called upon, in a case brought before it, to declare what the conditions are under which licenses to sell spirits in small quantities may be granted. Its conclusion was contrary to the construction under which the officials administering the law had acted, generally by legal advice, for some years past. It may be said the provisions now in force were found not to be such as the public generally had supposed them to be. The pains taken by the court in discussing the question proves that it was one of some intricacy. The doubt was due to there being too many laws on the subject in force at the same time; and the consequent necessity of resorting to older statutes in order to find the meaning of more recent enactments and of deciding where the old and the new law conflicted, and to what extent repealing clauses operated. If, under such circumstances, dealers erred in construing their privileges, it would not be just to hold them to penalties as for a willful violation of law. The Legislature is bound to make its enactments explicit and easy to be understood. The decision of the court, although undoubtedly correct, was a surprise, and caused much excitement among all interested. Its enforcement, no doubt, was accompanied by hardships. What is needed is to substitute for all existing laws on the subject a carefully prepared statute, in its limitations and restraints, clear and explicit in all its provisions, and, above all, complete in itself; to be uniformly, steadily and constantly enforced.

REAPPORTIONMENT.

Among the duties devolved upon the Legislature by the Constitution, will be the rearrangement of the Senate and Assembly districts. Sections 4 and 5 of article 3 of the Constitution expressly charge the Legislature, after each census, to so adjust these districts, that they shall contain, as near as may be, an equal number of inhabitants. From the beginning to the end of the Constitution, there is no stronger obligation placed upon the Legislature than this. It involves the most important right of the people, under our form of government; their voice in the legislative halls. By the terms of the Constitution, this duty should have been discharged in 1876, but it was not performed in that or the succeeding year. I do not desire to characterize this past disregard of the command of our highest law. I assume that the present Legislature will observe its oath to support the Constitution. To adjust these districts according to the return of the census, is a matter of mere mathematical calculation. It is easy of accomplishment, if approached, as I presume it will be, in a fair and impartial spirit. Certainly we cannot expect that the people will long continue to observe the ordinary restrictions and requirements of statute law, if their representatives who make that law utterly disregard and defy the especial mandates of the Constitution they have solemnly sworn to support.

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES AND SAVINGS BANKS.

Life insurance is comparatively new to this country, having been little known until within the last thirty years. The companies first organized to transact it, had to follow an untrodden path, and to correct errors as they gained experience. Thus feeling their way along, as their methods improved their business and usefulness increased. They now distribute many millions annually among widows and orphans, a majority of whom would otherwise be left destitute. Such organizations, if well managed, are of inestimable benefit to the community, and deserve all needful legislative support and protection. From time to time laws have been passed for the mutual protection of insurer and insured. Some of them have been extensively followed in other States. It cannot be claimed that their operation has been eminently successful. In some respects they have worked positive harm. Although a detailed review of the subject is far without the scope of this message, it is proper to instance the section of our statute requiring the deposit by every insurance company chartered in our State, and of others not making a similar deposit in their own States, of $100,000 in securities, as a condition precedent to the transaction of business. Several other States have added to their laws a requirement that companies chartered in this State should also deposit a specified amount of securities with their departments before doing business in those States. This has already resulted in hardship. The moneys so deposited in other States are completely beyond the control of the company which owns them, our department which supervises it, and the jurisdiction of our State courts. A perfectly solvent company may find itself embarrassed by the increasing calls upon it for heavy deposits of securities in other States. It would seem that funds thus beyond the jurisdiction of our State, ought not to be accredited and certified by our department. Again, great injustice often attends the winding up of insolvent companies, and much of it is due to the theory of the law applicable to that subject. As would be properly prescribed for a commercial bankrupt, if the reserve of an insurance company becomes impaired, the law directs the Superintendent of the Insurance Department, the Attorney-General and the courts, to wind it up and distribute its assets. This rule is unjust to those policy-holders whose health has failed, and who are, therefore, unable to procure insurance elsewhere, and also to those who, by reason of advanced age, can only secure insurance at increased cost. I think some more equitable plan of dissolution might be devised for such cases. It is now the practice, upon the application of the Attorney-General when called upon by the superintendent to place the affairs of insolvent companies in the hands of a receiver, who, at great expense of time and money, and with invariable loss to those interested, winds up its affairs. It may well be asked if this work would not be better and more cheaply done by placing the affairs of such companies in the hands of other life insurance or trust companies of high character and of known and approved responsibility, rather than in the hands of receivers, who are strangers to the practical methods of managing this class of business.

Akin to the business of life insurance, in many respects, is that of savings banks. These institutions hold in trust the little treasures of the poor. Upon their soundness and honest management depends much of that public confidence essential to the business of the country. Numerous failures among these banks have brought heavy losses upon those ill able to bear it, and stripped many of their entire savings. All that I have said of the insolvency of life insurance companies is as well applicable to the closings of savings banks.

I urge the Legislature to take strict account of these two classes of fiduciary corporations. Their organization, methods and needs are so nearly alike, that they may be treated together. The State which chartered them has a right to say they shall be faithful to those who trust them. To that end it should hold them to a strict accountability. It is a lamentable fact, that many organizations in both these great lines of business, have been found utterly unworthy of trust during the past few years. Life insurance companies have engaged in reckless competition, paying exorbitant commissions and investing in costly buildings and equipments. Savings banks, not content with filling their proper sphere as custodians of small savings, have sought to extend their business by obtaining deposits of large amount, a course which I deprecated in my last message. They, too, have been guilty of improper extravagance of management. It is equally true that the departments created for the special supervision of these institutions have failed to protect the public from loss by such shortcomings. Whence this failure has come is matter for your grave consideration. It is doubtless true that the laws which govern both the departments and the companies might be wisely amended, but the subject is a most important one. It must certainly be admitted that the departmental examinations have so far failed to give to the public any safeguard at all commensurate with their enormous costs to the institutions examined.

THE CODE.

In 1848, the old system of practice at law and in equity was abrogated, and in its stead was enacted the Code of Civil Procedure. Contemplating at this distance of time the results of the change, it may well be doubted whether it conferred any substantial benefit upon the people at all equivalent to the evils of which it was the cause. For twenty-five years the practice of law was unsettled. Private rights were imperiled by differing constructions of remedial provisions, and thousands of practice questions burdened our courts and crowded our law reports. At last, however, at the end of a quarter of a century, the construction of the Code had been substantially fixed by the courts. It was no longer common to see a citizen deprived of substantial rights in our tribunals through mistaken views of practice. The Legislature passed an act March 2, 1870, authorizing certain commissioners to "revise, simplify, arrange, and consolidate all statutes of the State of New York, general and permanent in their nature, and in performing this duty to bring "together all statutes and parts of statutes which, from similarity of subject ought to be brought together, omitting redundant or obsolete enactments, and making such alterations as may be necessary to reconcile the contradictions, supply the omissions and amend the imperfections of the original text." It is not necessary here to discuss the seriously debated objection, that this authority was not meant to extend to a revision of our system of practice. The commissioners did submit a new and voluminous act, entitled "The Code of Remedial Justice." Part of it, including 1,496 sections, was enacted by the Legislature of 1876, with a provision that it should not take effect until May 1, 1877. This date the Legislature, at its last session, changed to September 1, 1877, since which date that part of the revised system has been in operation under the restored name of "The Code of Civil Procedure." The remainder of the proposed Code, containing 1,800 sections, was passed by the last Legislature and sent to the Executive chamber, with more than 250 other bills, to be acted upon during the thirty days following the adjournment. It was a physical impossibility to read the act, which covered nearly 700 closely printed pages. The Constitution forbade its enactment after the adjournment without the written approval of the Governor. I did not feel authorized to approve an act which I could not read, and the bill, therefore, failed to become a law. The matter will, undoubtedly, be brought to your attention. It seems only proper to remind you that this new system can only be continued at the expense of another long period of doubt and litigation over its proper construction, which will cost the people of the State many millions of dollars. Already, serious questions of this sort have been brought before the courts. The great question will be presented to you whether the new system can be so far superior to the old as to justify you in committing the whole administration of civil justice to the confusion of construction from which it has just emerged. The courts under the old system, which they understand, are already burdened with labors almost beyond endurance, and it seems unwise to precipitate upon them a mass of practice litigation which must necessarily retard still more their accumulated load of business. I submit to your careful reflection the proposition that this grave subject would be best disposed of by the repeal of the partial Code which went into effect on the first of September, and the re-enactment of the Code which was in force up to this date, to be amended from time to time, as experience may suggest.

SPECIE PAYMENTS.

In view of the discussions going on in the Congress of the United States, it seems proper for me to remind you and our people that, whatever may happen elsewhere, specie payments are, under existing laws, to be resumed in this State from and after the first day of January next. Chapter 73, of the Laws of 1875, provides, first, that after the first day of January, 1879, all taxes levied in this State shall be paid in gold or in coin certificates or bank-notes redeemable in gold; and, secondly, that in all contracts made in this State after that date, the word dollars shall be construed to mean coin. All our taxes, general and local, including canal tolls, will, next year, have to be paid in gold or its equivalent, and the courts will be obliged to enforce private contracts in coin.

It will be seen that the day fixed in this law of our State is the same which is appointed by existing statutes of the United States for the resumption of specie payments by the treasury. The low premium on gold, which has for a long period prevailed, indicates a condition of things favorable to specie payments being generally re-established at an early day. It seems to me manifest now that if the credit of the federal government can be maintained at the point at which it stood a month or two ago, so that its bonds bearing low interest are freely sold, the treasury will be able to resume payment on or before the day designated, without distress to the community. We have, in fact, passed through all the suffering involved in the reduction of prices which inevitably followed the false values of a period of great inflation. Prices both of wages and property are, with few exceptions, lower to-day than they would have been if we had never departed from the coin standard; and I do not doubt that the resumption of specie payments will, at once, increase the exchangeable value of property and the market-price of labor. They are in error who suppose that a prolongation of the present uncertain condition of things will bring relief to those who, owing money, hope to realize more for their property, or to that large class of men which is looking for better rates of wages. With the present want of confidence, property does not readily find purchasers at any price; capital is timid in investing; enterprise is checked. Until confidence is restored, our wonted activity in the exchanging of property will not return, and until the present tendency to inactivity and almost morbid caution ceases, we will look in vain for a higher rate of wages. No financial device, by way of renewed inflation or debasement of our money, will compensate for the disastrous effects of the additional loss of confidence, which any such device will bring about. Relief is near at hand if we will seek it by the straight road; and it would be great weakness now, when we have paid the full cost of success, to take a single backward step. Any wavering on the part of the federal government, in respect to this question, must have the effect of prolonging indefinitely and intensifying the unhappy condition of business and of industry, under which we have suffered for several years. There can be no confidence in private transactions, if the general government set an example of a want of good faith. And it must always be borne in mind, in reference to the present discussion, as to the precise meaning of the government obligations, that the government debt cannot be enforced; there is no arbiter or tribunal to decide between the government and its creditors; the debt is purely a debt of honor; in such cases the debtor cannot keep himself clear of the imputation of bad faith, except by ruling all doubtful questions as to the meaning of his promise against himself. I trust there will be wisdom enough at Washington to avoid hindering our present hopeful progress toward specie payments, and that the laws of the general government, and those of our own State, on this subject, will continue to be, as they now are, in harmony.

BOUNDARY LINE BETWEEN NEW YORK AND CONNECTICUT.

The Legislature has heretofore passed resolutions directing the Attorney-General to take legal proceedings to determine the boundary line between New York and Connecticut through Long Island sound. The subject has been fully examined on behalf of the Attorney-General, and the result of such examination submitted to me. I am of the opinion that it is best that this question should be settled by a commission, to be appointed by the two States. I am informed that the Governor of Connecticut concurs in this view, and will so advise the Legislature of that State. I, therefore, recommend the appointment of commissioners to act with commissioners to be appointed by Connecticut, to determine the boundary line between the State of New York and Connecticut through Long Island sound.

THE ANTIETAM NATIONAL CEMETERY.

I have received a communication from the Secretary of War, stating that Congress has made an appropriation for the maintenance of the Antietam National Cemetery, to be paid, upon condition that the legal title to the cemetery shall be conveyed to the United States. The title has been held by the State of Maryland, as trustee for the several States that contributed towards its establishment. The Secretary of War requests that an act be passed by the Legislature of this State, consenting to the transfer of the property by the State of Maryland to the United States. The draft of such an act as is desired accompanies the communication. It will be submitted to the Legislature, and I recommend its early passage.

THE NEW CAPITOL.

It is now about ten years since the construction of the New Capitol was commenced. Up to the 15th of December, 1877, the sum of $8,276,615.36 has been expended upon it. This is a larger amount of money than was expended on the original construction of the Erie and Champlain canals, and yet there is not a single apartment in the building completed. It seems beyond the reach of human foresight to discover when it may be finished, or the amount of money which will be required for that purpose. I respectfully urge every member of the Legislature to go through the vast pile of brick and stone, and judge for himself what are the prospects which lie before the people in regard to the enormous expenditures yet to be made. In my message disapproving an appropriation of a million of dollars at the last session of the Legislature, I stated fully my views in regard to the whole subject. I believed that it was better for the reasons there given, that no further appropriation should be made, at least until there was an improvement in business and in the capacity of the people to pay taxes. I believed then, as I believe now, that a Capitol of proper size and of proper appearance, with far better conveniences for the transaction of public business, and far less expense in the maintenance of it, could be built, finished and furnished for much less money than it will require to complete the present building in all its vast and useless proportions. The views expressed by me in that message have been fully confirmed by repeated personal examinations of the building. There is not the least reason to believe that there is, in the whole State, any man of common sense who would now advise the commencement and construction of such a building as the New Capitol if it were an original and open question. The one only argument for going on with it is, that if we do not proceed we lose all the immense amount that has already been expended. This one consideration induced the Legislature to make an appropriation of half a million of dollars, instead of the million to which I had objected. Yielding to the conviction of the Legislature, that, for the reasons stated, the work must go on and the expenditures continue, I approved the appropriation for the half million. I, however, accompanied the approval with a recommendation that the money should be devoted to the completion, as far as possible, of the Assembly chamber, for the purpose of bringing some part of the building into use at the earliest practicable day and testing its adaptation to the uses for which it was intended. This recommendation was followed, and with very good results. The Assembly chamber is so far advanced, that if it is determined to go on with the work, it can undoubtedly be ready for occupation on the 1st of January, 1879. The expenditure of the half million appropriated, of course increases the strength of the argument to which I have referred, in favor of proceeding. If it shall be the judgment of the Legislature, that a further appropriation shall be made, I recommend that it be confined to the completion of the Assembly chamber, the Senate chamber, and possibly one or two other apartments, and that henceforth the work proceed by the completion of certain sections of it which may be brought into use, instead of spreading the expenditures over the whole building, large portions of which are not needed and cannot be used if completed.

The commissioners now in charge of the work have been attentive and faithful in the performance of their difficult duties. They are of the opinion that it is very desirable that whatever appropriation the Legislature may think proper to make should be made at an early day in the session in order that a portion of it may be used for stone cutting during the winter. Their recommendation in this respect has my approval.

OTHER PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

I would also make the same suggestion with reference to any appropriations which are to be made for insane asylums, or other public buildings. The practice of making the appropriation in the supply bill in the hurry and confusion of the closing hours of the session, is a very objectionable one. They will be more likely to receive the consideration and care which they should have, if brought forward early in the session. At the same time, in view of the general pecuniary embarrassment, I have to urge upon you the greatest possible frugality consistent with public interests.

CONCLUSION.

The importance of your labors, the dignity and responsibility of your position, are sufficiently attested by the fact that you are the legislative representatives of nearly five millions of people. The population and wealth, for which you are to care, far exceeds those of the republic in the days of Washington. This would be a great and sacred trust at any time. It is doubly so now, when the people are struggling to stem the tide of corruption and crime, which, originating during the war, has since so widely deluged the State and nation, as to shake, at times, the faith of the most hopeful. In itself the war was a small evil compared with its resulting demoralization. The light regard for constitutions and the law, the debased and inflated currency, and finally, the open trifling with the public faith to which it gave birth, have wrought more harm to the people than even its mighty sacrifice of blood and treasure. Excessive luxury in living sprang from imaginary wealth, and linked with this came fraud, perjury, forgery and defalcations, breaches of trust in private business and among public servants standing beneath the obligations of official oaths. The rapine and plunder which, for twelve years, desolated the Southern States, the common treason to official trusts, and frequent use of public place for private gain, have worked deep injury to the nation's sense of right. Even now, millions of voters smart at the conviction that they have been defrauded of their choice in a national election, and robbed of the right of suffrage guaranteed them by their Constitution and the law. They believe that the presidency of the republic is held by one not elected to that office, and without moral title to its powers and its honors. This belief is shared by a majority of the people. They yield obedience to an Executive of fact but not of right, that they may save the land from anarchy. They none the less charge this great crime upon those high officials by whose conspiracy against the law it was made possible. That these their servants should have certified falsehood to be the truth, gives them deep sense of wrong. They know that this defiance of the people's will if it be made a precedent, will bring our government to a swift and certain end. For all these reasons the state of popular feeling is not what those who love our institutions long to see it. But, in spite of these discouragements, there are good grounds of hope for the future. A sounder state of public opinion is surely, though slowly, developing. Necessity with many, and good inclinations with more, are leading to rational living and closer economy of expenditure. The people demand more faithful service of public officials. The prison doors are closing behind many of the swindlers who from the ranks of so-called good society, have sought to make crime respectable, and we may well believe the day of retribution to those who falsify and corrupt the ballot-box, is near at hand. The long despotism of military occupation in the Southern States is a thing of the past. As the chosen representatives of the people, you are now called upon to take your stand in the unending conflict between right and wrong. I need not remind you that the State of New York has behind it a long and honorable history. It has stood foremost in every effort to elevate the people, to purify the public service, and to preserve unstained the institutions of our country. It is given to you, in the discharge of your high duties, to devote again the voice of the State to the cause of public morality and official virtue. I do not doubt that you will bring to this great work your best energy and most enlightened efforts, and to that end I earnestly bespeak for you the guidance and inspiration of the Divine Being with whom alone dwells perfect wisdom.

Whereas, The conflict developed by the recent riots in this and other States, between the poor and laboring classes and rich corporations (existing by virtue of legislative enactment) should, so far as possible, be remedied by the interposition of the Legislature, so as to enable the poor man to enjoy the same benefits and protection of law as are already vouchsafed to the rich ; and

Whereas, The recurrence of all such attempts at riot as those above referred to, which in this State alone cost the people not less than $230,000, may be in the future entirely obviated, by the enactment of proper laws for the judicious protection of all classes ; therefore

The journal of yesterday was read and approved.

A message from the Senate was received and read, informing of concurrence in the passage of the bill entitled as follows:

"An act to amend chapter 145 of the Laws of 1868, entitled 'An act to regulate the expenditures for poor purposes in Seneca county.'"

Ordered, That the Clerk deliver said bill to the Governor.

Mr. Daly rose to a question of privilege, and read from the papers of yesterday, a statement of Dr. Howard Crosby, of New York, in which he asserted that he (Daly), was in favor of free rum, and that also that the members of the New York delegation "lied" when they alleged that the people of New York desired a modification of the excise law. He then proceeded to make a lengthy personal explanation in vindication of his course. He said his record in the Assembly, during two of its sessions, furnished ample proof that he was not in favor of free rum. He distinctly stated, when he introduced the bill at the opening of the session, that his measure was in the interest of law and order and a just administration of the government. That had been his ruling motive during his whole public life, and he challenged any one to cite a word or act to the contrary. He was as jealous of his reputation for fairness and candor as was the reverend gentleman himself, and he hoped never to commit any act which would tarnish his reputation in this regard. He was no more in favor of free rum than was the Reverend Howard Crosby, but he did not believe we could compel men to be temperate and virtuous by legislative enactment. He believed thoroughly in moral suasion as a remedy for the evils of intemperance. It was the true solution of the question. He criticised very severely the utterances of Dr. Crosby, as reported, and said they were unworthy of a man who occupies such an exalted social position. He had failed to exercise that Christian charity for his fellow-men that should distinguish a Christian minister, and he trusted that hereafter, when he mounts the platform to discuss these questions, he would couch his utterances in more temperate language. It was with extreme pain and reluctance that he arose to make this explanation, but he felt that his duty to maintain his own fair fame and the honor of his colleagues demanded it. These expressions would go forth broad-cast, and he felt that a vindication was due in the premises. He then cited facts to show how indefensible were the assertions of the reverend gentleman, that the citizens of New York were opposed to modification of the excise law. He said he would not follow Dr. Crosby's example, and characterize them as lies. He would simply say he was mistaken.

Pursuant to 9th joint rule, Mr. Speaker announced the order of business, "third reading of bills."

The Legislature shall annually, by equitable taxes, make provision for the expenses of the superintendence and repairs of the canals.

The canal debt contracted under the section hereby amended, which on the first day of October, 1877, amounted to $9,014,200, shall continue to be known as the "canal debt under article 7, section 3 of the Constitution," and the sinking fund applicable to the payment thereof, together with the contributions to be made thereto, shall continue to be known as the "Canal Debt Sinking Fund, under article 7, section 3 of the Constitution;" and the principal and interest of said debt shall be met as provided in the fifth section of this article.

In the event of such action by the Legislature, then the Legislature shall, in the law directing the levying and assessment of such tax, make such provision for the retirement of the canal debt as it shall deem equitable and just to the creditors of the State.

Resolved, That the committee on ways and means of this House be directed to investigate this matter, and report by what authority of law or otherwise, the said board of equalization altered the assessment as returned by the State Assessors, in order to benefit our largest city at the expense of the country, whereby the interior of the State has been compelled to raise $257,908.82 more of tax than it would have paid if the table of the State Assessors had been adopted.

Resolved, That the said committee are further directed to report what means of redress are afforded to counties that are deemed aggrieved under the existing laws of this State. And also, what further legislation is necessary, in order to secure an equalization that is fair and equitable toward every part of the State.

Amount added to the several counties, by the Board of Equalization, in excess of table reported by the State Assessors.

To the Honorable the Assembly :

Your Committee on Privileges and Elections, to which was referred the petition of Fordham Morris, claiming the seat in the Assembly now held and occupied by Ambrose H. Purdy as member of Assembly for the first Assembly district of the county of Westchester, respectfully report :

That the parties and their counsel have appeared before the committee and have all been heard ; that upon the investigations before your committee it was first discovered that the return from the first election district of the city and town of Yonkers, as originally returned by the inspectors of election of that district to the county canvassers, showed that the whole number of votes cast in that election district for member of Assembly was five hundred and six, which were stated in said return, as follows :

Ambrose H. Purdy received three hundred and eight.....	308
Fordham Morris received one hundred and eight	198

That said return had no ballots attached to it as required by statute, that the board of county canvassers of Westchester county, after effecting their organization, caused this return to be taken back to the inspectors of election of that district, as provided by statute, for correction; that thereupon the inspectors attached to a sheet of paper the specimen ballots so required by statute, and wrote and made return, partly upon said ballots and partly upon said paper, with reference to member of Assembly; that Ambrose H. Purdy received three hundred and eight votes, like the one so attached, and that Fordham Morris received one hundred and ninety-eight votes, like the one attached, which paper they certified by their signatures as inspectors, and attached to the original return as a part of the same, which original return was then returned to the board of county canvassers, and the vote of that election district was canvassed by them, by giving Mr. Purdy three hundred and eight votes and Mr. Morris one hundred and ninety-eight.

Your committee, Mr. Piper only dissenting, are of the opinion that the return from the first election district of the city and town of Yonkers, was properly canvassed by the county canvassers, by counting three hundred and eight votes for Mr. Purdy and one hundred and ninety-eight votes for Mr. Morris.

Your committee required to be produced before them the original returns of the inspectors of election from each of the election districts in the first Assembly district of the county of Westchester. It was conceded by both parties that the board of county canvassers correctly canvassed and estimated the vote as to member of Assembly in each election district, except the sixth and eighth districts in the Twenty-third ward of the city of New York, and the first district of the city and town of Yonkers.

It appears from the evidence before your committee, that the whole number of votes cast for member of Assembly in this Assembly district was seven thousand two hundred and twenty-two; that the board of county canvassers, in the canvass of said vote, gave to Ambrose H. Purdy thirty-six hundred votes, and to Fordham Morris thirty-five hundred and eighty-eight votes, leaving thirty-four votes which were counted for neither in the final canvass, but which appeared by the returns to have been returned to the county canvassers as follows :

In the sixth election district of the Twenty-third ward :
Fordham H. Morris.....	1
Fordham Morris, irregular.....	19
In the eighth election district of the Twenty-third ward :
Fordham Morris.....	13
Ambrose H. Purdy.....	1

That the nineteen votes returned from the sixth election district "irregular," and not counted for Fordham Morris, were, as appears, returned and not counted for Mr. Morris by the county canvassers, for the reason that the words "of the county of Westchester" were not at the head of the ballot, the same being upon all the other ballots in that election district; that the thirteen votes returned from the eighth election district of the Twenty-third ward, and not counted for Mr. Morris, were rejected for the same reason; and it also appears that in this district one vote was not counted for Ambrose H. Purdy for the same reason.

Your committee are unanimously of the opinion that the words "of the county of Westchester" so omitted from the head of the said ballots were not required as a portion thereof by any law of this State, and that the ballots were complete without them, and that it was the duty of the inspectors of election of the said sixth and eighth districts to have counted and returned the said nineteen and thirteen ballots for Fordham Morris and the said one ballot for Ambrose H. Purdy, and that it was the duty of the board of county canvassers of Westchester county to have counted and estimated the said ballots for Mr. Morris and Mr. Purdy respectively.

If a correct canvass of the whole vote had thus been made, it would have resulted as follows:

Fordham Morris.....	3,620
Ambrose H. Purdy	3,601
Fordham H. Morris.....	1
Total.....	7,222

And that therefore, the certificate of election should have been awarded by the board of county canvassers to Fordham Morris.

On the part of Mr. Purdy it is insisted, that there were frauds and irregularities in the election in different districts, which he claims he can prove, and by which he asserts he can establish that he was in fact elected.

It is entirely just and proper that Mr. Purdy should be allowed to present any testimony he may have bearing upon the question of his election, and that he should be awarded the seat if he shall be able to prove that he is entitled to it. But it appears to your committee equally just and clear, upon the plainest principles of justice and equity, that Mr. Morris should be awarded his seat, at this time of which he is deprived, by a palpable violation of law and duty; and that Mr. Purdy should be placed in the same position that he would have been in had the county canvassers observed the law and performed their duty.

Your committee therefore report and recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved. That Fordham Morris is entitled to and is hereby awarded the seat in the Assembly now held and occupied by Ambrose H. Purdy as member of Assembly from the first Assembly district of the county of Westchester, and that the said Ambrose H. Purdy be at liberty to contest such seat if he shall desire to do so.

Dated February 8, 1878.

CRANDALL

Ordered, That the Clerk deliver said bill to the Senate, and request their concurrence therein.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Piper, from the committee on privileges and elections, presented a minority report in the words following :

The undersigned, the minority of your committee on privileges and elections, to which was referred, with others, the case of Fordham Morris, contestant of the seat of Hon. Ambrose H. Purdy, of Westchester county, respectfully states that after repeated meetings, held at divers times and places, for the investigation of this matter, the majority of said committee arrived at a conclusion, from which and the report of said majority he respectfully dissents, for the following reasons :

First. It was insisted upon by the contestant and his counsel, and acceded to and allowed, by a majority of the committee, that the question, independent of all other claims and allegations of the contestant, and all counter-claims and allegations of the sitting member, first to be considered, was, what should have been the result arrived at by the canvassing board of Westchester county, in relation to member of Assembly for the First district of said county, upon the returns before them, and while acting in accordance with the rules, regulations and restrictions prescribed by law for the action of said board. The returns from all the election districts, in the said First Assembly district, are conceded, on all sides, to be correct, except those from the First district of the city and town of Yonkers, and the Sixth and Eighth districts of the Twenty-third ward of the city of New York. The returns from the First district of the city and town of Yonkers were deemed by the board of canvassers to be incomplete, on account of not having the ballots attached, and were taken back to the inspectors, in accordance with a resolution of said board, by certain members thereof, designated for that purpose, to be corrected in respect to the attaching of the ballots, and for no other purpose whatever.

The inspectors did not attach the ballots to the original statement, nor in anywise correct or alter the same. But they attached to a distinct piece of paper, the number of ballots respectively received by them, but not the number of votes received and allowed to any person. This writing on the paper to which the ballots were attached, was not intended or thought of, as a correction of any error, in the original statement. It was not in fact such correction. In that original statement, it appears that Andrew H. Purdy received 308 and Fordham Morris received 108 votes only; while Fordham Morris was allowed by the canvassers 198 votes, being an allowance to Mr. Morris of ninety more votes, than in the judgment of the undersigned should have been allowed to him.

In the Sixth Election district of the Twenty-third ward of New York, the return states, among other things, that Fordham Morris "received irregular nineteen" votes; but it does not appear upon the return, in any shape or form, in what this irregularity consists. Irregularities, in this respect, may arise from a variety of causes, which may and should be corrected, when there is judicial authority to do so. The board of county canvassers have not this authority. This duty is ministerial mainly, and therefore, in the opinion of the undersigned, the canvassers lawfully and properly rejected these nineteen votes, in the count for Mr. Morris. For substantially the same reason, as last above given, the undersigned is of the opinion, that the thirteen votes mentioned in the returns from the Eighth election district, in the Twenty-third ward of New York, and referred to by the majority of the committee, in their report, were properly disallowed; and that the result of the county canvass should have been that Ambrose H. Purdy received 3,600 votes, and Fordham Morris received 3,498 votes, and consequently, that the certificate of election was properly allowed to Mr. Purdy, and that he is lawfully and rightfully entitled to his seat.

Second. The undersigned most emphatically dissents from that part of the report of said majority, wherein they state, that notwithstanding the sitting member, Mr. Purdy says, that he has an abundance of proof to show that frauds and irregularities were committed to his prejudice; and by which proof he can fully establish his right to his seat, they, nevertheless, refuse to hear him, deny him his legal rights, and propose to drive him from his seat and compel him to assume the attitude of a contestant.

From the mere statement of this proposition, it appears so unfair, so unjust and so unfeeling, that no argument or illustration is necessary to cause it to be spurned by every man who is actuated by any of the noble impulses of our common nature. The undersigned, therefore, recommends the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That the sitting member, Hon. Ambrose H. Purdy, having received the certificate of election from the board of county canvassers of the county of Westchester, that he was duly elected to the office of member of Assembly for the First district of said county, at the late general election, by the greatest number of votes, as appears from all the evidence thus far produced, is justly entitled to the seat now held by him in this House.

S. B. PIPER.

Mr. Piper moved that said report be laid upon the table, and ordered printed.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to said motion, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. Speaker presented the Annual Report of the State Engineer and Surveyor on companies navigating the lakes and rivers; which was laid on the table and ordered printed.

(See Doc. No. 57.)

Mr. Brooks presented a resolution of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York in regard to the canals of the State; which was referred to the committee on canals, and ordered printed.

(See Doc. No. 54.)

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Fish, from the committee on affairs of cities, to which was referred the bill introduced by Mr. Andrews, Int. No. 259, entitled "An act to provide for the care, government, protection, and improvement of the public park known as Ross park, in the city of Binghamton," reported in favor of the passage of the same, with the title amended so as to read "An act to create a board of park commissioners in the city of Binghamton, and to confer upon said board the care, control, and management of the park known as Ross park in said city," which report was agreed to, and said bill committed to the committee of the whole.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Graham, from the majority of the committee on general laws (Mr. Nelson and Mr. Peek dissenting), to which was referred the bill introduced by Mr. E. Taylor, Int. No. 152, entitled "An act to amend chapter 482 of the Laws of 1875, entitled 'An act to confer on boards of supervisors further powers of local legislation and administration, and to regulate the compensation of supervisors,'" reported in favor of the passage of the same, which report was agreed to, and said bill committed to the committee of the whole.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Graham, from the committee on general laws, to which was referred the bill introduced by Mr. Reynolds, Int. No. 168, entitled "An act to amend subdivision 4 of section 1 of chapter 257 of the Laws of 1876, entitled 'An act to confer on boards of supervisors further powers of local legislation and administration, and to regulate the compensation of supervisors,'" reported in favor of the passage of the same, with an amendment, which report was agreed to, and said bill committed to the committee of the whole.

By unanimous consent, Mr. Prescott, from the committee on railroads, offered the following resolutions:

Whereas, By resolution adopted by the House January 22, 1878, the committee on railroads were directed to "investigate and inquire into the merits, intent, and purposes of what is known as the 'coal combination,' and they were thereby empowered to send for persons, administer oaths, and take testimony;" and whereas, your committee find it impossible to proceed efficiently and discharge the duty imposed upon them without the aid of a stenographer and further powers; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the committee on railroads be authorized to employ Frederick Carman as stenographer for the uses of the committee in such investigation, who shall be paid for his services (including the making of one copy, in a plain hand, of the minutes and proceedings of the committee), the sum of fifteen cents per folio.

Resolved, That said committee be authorized to sit during the sessions of the House, if they shall deem it necessary so to do.

Resolved, That the said committee be authorized to take testimony outside of the city of Albany, and to call for and require production of books and papers.

Resolved, That the time provided in the original resolution for report of said committee be, and the same hereby is, extended twenty-five days from this date.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to said resolutions, and it was determined in the affirmative, as follows :

To the Hon. JAMES W. HUSTED, Speaker of the Assembly:

SIR — On the 14th instant the Hon. Ambrose H. Purdy offered, for the consideration of the Assembly, a resolution that the undersigned be permitted to address the House in person or by counsel upon the report of the committee on privileges and elections made upon the petition of the undersigned to be declared elected as member of Assembly for the First district of the county of Westchester.

When the resolution was before the House, one of its members, at my request, tendered my thanks to Mr. Purdy for his courtesy, stating, at the same time, that I declined to avail myself of a privilege which would compel the House to depart from its usual course of procedure. The resolution was passed, however, and I beg leave to express to the House my grateful sense of the courtesy extended to me in that respect; but I must still respectfully decline to take advantage of it.

My case has had a full and patient hearing before the committee of your body, to whom the special duty of examining such questions has been delegated, and they have presented the result of their deliberations on the subject. Whenever the House shall be pleased to consider the question, the gentlemen of that committee can present the views that guided them in their report with a much higher claim to the attention and consideration of the House than I can lay any pretensions to, for they will speak with the authority and under the responsibility of impartial judges, while I should be supposed to speak from the stand-point of my own interest.

Again thanking the House, through you, for their kind intentions and courtesy,

I am, very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

FORDHAM MORRIS.

Mr. Speaker announced the special order of the day, being the report of the committee on privileges and elections on the contested seat of Ambrose H. Purdy, claimed by Fordham Morris, in the words following:

To the Honorable the Assembly:

Your committee on privileges and elections, to which was referred the petition of Fordham Morris, claiming the seat in the Assembly now held and occupied by Ambrose H. Purdy as member of Assembly for the First Assembly district of the county of Westchester, respectfully report, that the parties and their counsel have appeared before the committee and have all been heard; that upon the investigations before your committee it was first discovered that the return from the first election district of the city and town of Yonkers, as originally returned by the inspectors of election of that district to the county canvassers, showed that the whole number of votes cast in that election district for member of Assembly was 506, which were stated in said return, as follows:

Ambrose H. Purdy received three hundred and eight	308
Fordham Morris received one hundred and eight	198

That said return had no ballots attached to it as required by statute; that the board of county canvassers of Westchester county, after effecting their organization, caused this return to be taken back to the inspectors of election of that district, as provided by statute, for correction; that thereupon the inspectors attached to a sheet of paper the specimen ballots so required by statute, and wrote and made return, partly upon said ballots and partly upon said paper, with reference to member of Assembly, that Ambrose H. Purdy received 308 votes, like the one so attached, and that Fordham Morris received 198 votes, like the one attached, which paper they certified by their signatures as inspectors, and attached to the original return as a part of the same, which original return was then returned to the board of county canvassers, and the vote of that election district was canvassed by them, by giving Mr. Purdy 308 votes and Mr. Morris 198.

Your committee, Mr. Piper only dissenting, are of the opinion that the return from the first election district of the city and town of Yonkers, was properly canvassed by the county canvassers, by counting 308 votes for Mr. Purdy, and 198 votes for Mr. Morris.

Your committee required to be produced before them the original returns of the inspectors of election from each of the election districts in the first Assembly district of the county of Westchester. It was conceded by both parties that the board of county canvassers correctly canvassed and estimated the vote as to member of Assembly in each election district, except the sixth and eighth districts in the Twenty-third ward of the city of New York, and the first district of the city and town of Yonkers.

It appears from the evidence before your committee, that the whole number of votes cast for member of Assembly in this Assembly district was 7,222; that the board of county canvassers, in the canvass of said vote, gave to Ambrose H. Purdy 3,600 votes, and to Fordham Morris 3,588 votes, leaving thirty-four votes which were counted for neither in the final canvass, but which appeared by the returns to have been returned to the county canvassers as follows :

In the sixth election district of the Twenty-third ward :
Fordham H. Morris	1
Fordham Morris, irregular.....	19
In the eighth election district of the twenty-third ward :
Fordham Morris.....	13
Ambrose H. Purdy.....	1
Total.....	34

That the nineteen votes returned from the sixth election district "irregular," and not counted for Fordham Morris, were, as appears, returned and not counted for Mr. Morris by the county canvassers, for the reason that the words "of the county of Westchester" were not at the head of the ballot, the same being upon all the other ballots in that election district; that the thirteen votes returned from the eighth election district of the Twenty-third ward, and not counted for Mr. Morris, were rejected for the same reason; and it also appears that in this district one vote was not counted for Ambrose H. Purdy for the same reason.

Your committee are unanimously of the opinion that the words "of the county of Westchester" so omitted from the head of the said ballots were not required as a portion thereof by any law of this State, and that the ballots were complete without them, and that it was the duty of the inspectors of election of the said sixth and eighth districts to have counted and returned the said nineteen and thirteen ballots for Fordham Morris and the said one ballot for Ambrose H. Purdy, and that it was the duty of the board of county canvassers of Westchester county to have counted and estimated the said ballots for Mr. Morris and Mr. Purdy respectively.

If a correct canvass of the whole vote had thus been made, it would have resulted as follows :

Fordham Morris.....	3,620
Ambrose H. Purdy.....	3,601
Fordham H. Morris	1
Total	7,222

And that, therefore, the certificate of election should have been awarded by the board of county canvassers to Fordham Morris.

On the part of Mr. Purdy it is insisted, that there were frauds and irregularities in the election in different districts, which he claims he can prove, and by which he asserts he can establish that he was in fact elected.

It is entirely just and proper that Mr. Purdy should be allowed to present any testimony he may have bearing upon the question of his election, and that he should be awarded the seat if he shall be able to prove that he is entitled to it. But it appears to your committee equally just and clear, upon the plainest principles of justice and equity, that Mr. Morris should be awarded his seat at this time, of which he is deprived by a palpable violation of law and duty; and that Mr. Purdy should be placed in the same position that he would have been in had the county canvassers observed the law and performed their duty.

Your committee, therefore, report and recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That Fordham Morris is entitled to and is hereby awarded the seat in the Assembly now held and occupied by Ambrose H. Purdy as member of Assembly from the First Assembly district of the county of Westchester, and that the said Ambrose H. Purdy be at liberty to contest such seat if he shall desire to do so.

Dated February 8, 1878.

GEO. L. TERRY,
L. B. KERN,
JAMES G. GRAHAM,
O. D. PRESCOTT,

Whereas, The vast and rapidly increasing commerce of the lakes imperatively demands that some action be immediately taken which shall result in providing for an ample, cheaper, and more rapid transit by water of the immense products of the west to the seaboard ; and,

Whereas, The near approach of the completion of the Welland canal, affording capacity for the passage of transports of the largest classes, will divert a large portion of the commerce of the west to foreign bottoms and to foreign ports ; and,

Whereas, The Forty-first Congress, through the action of two of its leading committees (the committee on commerce and the committee on appropriations), recognized the national importance of our trunk canals as a public highway, and the propriety of enlarging the same, in favorably reporting to the House a bill authorizing the issue of bonds of the United States in an amount sufficient to enlarge the trunk canals of New York, so as to allow the passage of boats carrying 600 tons burden ; and,

Whereas, Public sentiment and the business judgment of the country clearly indicate that Congress will now be fully justified in consummating the project inaugurated by the committees of the Forty-first Congress ; therefore,

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That whenever the government elects to issue and deliver to the properly constituted authorities of the State of New York bonds of the United States in an amount sufficient to cancel the present canal debt of the State, and to enlarge the trunk canals of the State so as to allow the passage of boats of the capacity of 600 tons burden, then the State will cause the proceeds of said bonds to be expended for the purpose above specified, as soon as the same can be done without materially interrupting the navigation of the canals, and to declare and dedicate said canals as public highways, to be and remain forever free to the commerce of the nation from the lakes to tide-water.

Whereas, By an act entitled “An act authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Hudson river at Albany, passed April 9, 1856,” a body corporate was formed by the name of “The Hudson River Bridge Company,” for the purpose of erecting and maintaining a bridge for the purposes of railroad travel and transportation across the Hudson river at Albany ; and,

Whereas, By section 12 of said act the directors of said company were authorized to establish, from time to time, tolls and charges subject to the approval of the Canal Board ; provided, however, that such tolls and charges should be so regulated that, they should not yield a net annual revenue to exceed ten per cent per annum upon the amount of the capital stock ; and,

Whereas, It appears that the said company has not reported the amount of its net annual revenue since the year 1866, and that since said year no schedule of tolls and charges have been submitted by said company to the Canal Board for its approval, and that the tolls and charges have not been within said period of time regulated in proportion to the revenue as prescribed by law ; and,

Whereas, By resolution of this House, passed January 24, 1878, the said company was required to report the amount of its annual revenue to this House within ten days, and the company not having so reported within the ten days, and an extension of ten days further time to report having been granted by motion of the House on the 7th day of February, 1878 ; and,

Whereas, The time so extended having expired, and the company having neglected and failed to comply with said resolution ; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Attorney-General be and he is hereby instructed to take immediate steps by scire facias, or other legal proceeding that to him may seem proper in the premises, and ascertain thereby whether or

Ordered, That said resolution be laid upon the table.

Mr. Sheard called from the table resolutions, previously offered by him, in the words following :

Whereas, We know that the agitation in Congress in relation to the modification of our present tariff laws, is injurious to our business enterprises, producing a state of uncertainty which may, in itself, prove destructive to that slowly returning confidence so desirable and requisite in building up the waste places of our manufacturing and mechanical interests, and enabling the large amount of capital, now otherwise idle, to give labor to the many thousands of workingmen now out of employment, whose families are now hungering for the want of the same ; therefore,

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That it is the belief of the people of the State of New York, in Senate and Assembly represented, that it is unwise, unpatriotic and detrimental to the best interests of the country generally, to interfere, at this time with our tariff laws.

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That we condemn, both in principle and spirit, what is known as the "Wood Tariff bill," now pending before Congress.

"Whereas, It is provided by section 12 of this act, that after the said bridge shall have been completed, such tolls and charges may be collected for crossing the same on foot and with wagons, cars or carriages of any kind, and with horses or other animals, or otherwise, as the directors may from time to time establish, subject to the approval of the Canal Board; provided, however, that such tolls shall be so regulated that they shall not yield a net annual revenue to exceed ten per cent upon the amount of such capital stock; and,

"Whereas, It appears that the said Hudson River Bridge Company has not submitted to the Canal Board their sheet of toll rates since the year 1866, therefore,

"Resolved, That the said Hudson River Bridge Company, at Albany, be and is hereby directed to report to this Legislature within ten days, the amount of tolls received by said bridge company since their last report to the Canal Board, which statement to be verified under oath by the president and secretary of said company,"

THURSDAY, MARCH 7, 1878.

The House met pursuant to adjournment.

Prayer by Rev. Dr. Holmes.

The journal of yesterday was read and approved.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Brooks offered, for the consideration of the House, a preamble and resolution in the words following :

Whereas, in the issue of the New York Times of the sixth instant, it is asserted :

1. That while the debt of the city of New York appeared to be reduced, it was, in reality, being steadily increased.

2. That the receipts from taxes in the city fall short of the expenditure.

3. That the treasury of the city was empty, while revenue bonds were issued which must, in the end, become part of the debt.

4. That the board of apportionment of this city concealed its extravagances by the "transfer" system, viz.: that while it ostensibly "appropriated" only certain published amounts, it increased these appropriations where political favorites were concerned by the "transfer" to their credit of certain mythical "unexpended balances" of other funds, dating as far back as 1875.

5. That these balances were, in fact, represented only by book balances; not by money in the treasury, for there was none; and that bonds being issued to cover the transactions, the public debt was steadily on the increase; and,

Whereas, It is proper that all facts bearing upon these assertions should be, without delay, communicated to the Assembly, to the end that such action may be taken in reference thereto as may be required; therefore,

Resolved, That the comptroller of said city be and he is hereby required, within five days from this date, to transmit to the Assembly :

1. An abstract of the debt of said city for each of the last five years.

2. An abstract of the receipts from taxes for each of the last five years, and how far, if in any particular year, the expenditures fell short of the receipts; and if so, explaining to what is this attributable, and how it can be remedied.

3. The balances in the treasury of the city at the close of 1877, and at the close of each of the months of January and February, 1878, and on the 6th day of March, 1878.

4. The amount of revenue bonds of the city outstanding at the close of the years 1876 and 1877, the amount of revenue bonds since issued, and the amount of such bonds paid during the year 1878.

5. A statement showing the amounts transferred by the board of estimate and apportionment during each of the five years preceding the year 1878 (and of such transfers made during 1878), the particular purposes for which such transfers were made, and the claims paid and to whom paid therefrom; and,

6. Whether any bonds of the city were issued to meet or provide for such transfers; and if so, the amount of the same, and those still outstanding or unpaid.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to said resolution, and it was determined in the affirmative.

On motion of Mr. Brooks, and by unanimous consent, said resolution was ordered printed.

Whereas, The creation of a board of estimate and apportionment, for the city of New York, was a part of a system deceptively begun, with the intent to strip the electors, aldermen and commonalty of proper legislative power and control; and

Whereas, The legislation of this State respecting the city of New York, in 1873, by re-creating a board of estimate and apportionment, adopts the vicious system of 1871, and thereby keeps in abeyance during many years the elective power of the voters of that city over taxation and expenditure, and sets up an irresponsible oligarchy of four persons, who have the chief powers of expenditure and taxation, of legislation and administration over a million of people; and

Whereas, The members of this board have been put in office and kept in office by a law of the State, without the consent of the voters of that city, and are beyond the power of removal by its voters; and

Whereas, The corporation counsel of the city of New York has recently declared, in an elaborate official opinion, that this board has "general legislative power" in city affairs; and

Whereas, A newspaper published in the city of New York—the New York Times—declared, on the 5th of September, 1871, that the legislation of the State, which first created the board, "was the exclusive invention of the 'Ring,' and was a fraud from the beginning," which "was designed to consolidate and perpetuate all municipal power in the hands of an oligarchy of four men"; and

Whereas, Such a power in the hands of a few officers, who are not elective and cannot be removed from office by a majority of the voters of the municipality, is at variance with the accepted maxims and traditions of American representative government; therefore, be it

Resolved, By the Assembly, that the committee on cities be and it hereby is directed to forthwith inquire and report whether the law creating and maintaining the present board of estimate and apportionment in New York city should not be repealed, and other laws be enacted instead, which, under proper supervision by the State, will enable the voters of the city, by one election, to exercise an efficient and safe control over the local affairs of the municipality.

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the people of the State of New York, speaking through their representatives in the Legislature, do hereby protest to the honorable the Congress of the United States against the passage of the bill introduced by Senator Sargent, whereby it is proposed to transfer the control of the life-saving service on the seaboard and the lake coasts from the Treasury to the Navy Department, believing such transfer to be unjust to the officials who have brought said service to its present stage of efficiency ; unwise by reason of its necessarily damaging effect upon the crews, and inexpedient as substituting inexperienced and perhaps incompetent persons in the places of those who, by occupation and local experience, have become qualified to man the surf-boats and efficiently discharge the other duties of the service. We therefore request our representatives in senate and congress to oppose the transfer.

On motion of Mr. Alvord, and at 12 o'clock and 30 minutes, the House adjourned.

MONDAY, MARCH 18, 1878.

The House met pursuant to adjournment.

Prayer by Rev. John Humpstone.

The journal of Friday, March 15, was read and approved.

Mr. Alvord rose to a question of privilege and said: I rise to a question of privilege. I have been, as I think, rather unkindly dealt with in the newspapers of the day, on various occasions during this session, but I have postponed speaking about it because I didn't think I could find language to meet the necessities of the occasion. But I have had placed in my hand within a very short time an opinion in regard to this matter of the press from one of their own fraternity—an editor who can sit quiet for a month and then come out and give his honest views in regard to editors, and making his remarks my own, I propose to read them, premising that it is owing unquestionably to the religious zeal and to the religious expressions of the press that they act in the way they do:

"It is, in truth, the religious sincerity of the newspaper which gives it its power. No one ever supposes that he is reading in the clear columns of his newspaper statements that the editor does not believe. It never occurs to the reader that the most selfish personal interest dictates this article and that argument. He never says to himself as he reads that this is only the gammon of A, or the spite of B, or the jealousy of C. He does not smile at the solemn, moral airs which bitter personal disappointment gives itself in the press, and never detects in the strident preacher a contemptible striker or blackmailer. He never sees a newspaper change sides, warmly extolling to-day those whom yesterday it derided, and suddenly sneering at those whom but now it could not sufficiently flatter. He never sees Micawber in the newspaper strenuously asserting financial honor, or Shylock praising humanity, or Mawworm eulogizing sincerity. Still less does he see Thomas Paine defending orthodoxy, or Falstaff and Bardolph celebrating temperance and the personal virtues. The reason is that very religious sensibility of the press which has been lately unveiled.

"Except for this fact the awe that doth hedge the press might suffer. If it were supposed that newspapers were ever used as vehicles of private malice, to promote selfish schemes, to slander men known to be innocent, to infuriate party spirit, to gratify grudges and avenge disappointments, to 'cook' news, to levy blackmail, to pander to mobs, to affect honor and decency and piety, to attack men who said what the newspapers thought, but did not dare to say—if all these things were supposed to be possible or common in the press, the name of 'newspaper man' would not, perhaps, as now, invite universal confidence and respect. But this belief is fortunately prevented by the sound views upon religion which the press expresses. Does the ingenuous reader recall Barry Lyndon's mother? 'Often and often has she talked to me and the neighbors regarding her own humility and piety, pointing them out in such a way that I would defy the most obstinate to disbelieve her.' Reading the religious articles of the newspapers, Barry Lyndon would be perplexed in which office to seek his mother."

The Sergeant-at-Arms appeared before the bar of the House, having in custody John Duffy and Edward R. Scott, in pursuance to a resolution of the House, adopted on Friday, March 15, 1878, and made the following report:

To Hon. JAMES W. HUSTED, Speaker of the Assembly:

Pursuant to the orders of the Assembly, adopted March 15, 1878, in the following words:

"On motion of Mr. Terry,

"Whereas, It appears that Edward R. Scott, of the city of New York, and John Duffy, of the town of White Plains, have been duly subpoenaed to appear before the committee on privileges and elections, to testify in the investigation pending before said committee, concerning the claims of Fordham Morris to the seat of Ambrose H. Purdy, in the Assembly; and,

"Whereas, The said Edward R. Scott and John Duffy have refused to appear and testify before the said committee in said case,

"Resolved, That an attachment issue from this Assembly, directing the Sergeant-at-Arms to bring the bodies of the said Edward R. Scott and the said John Duffy before the bar of the House, forthwith, and then and there to be disposed of as the Assembly shall deem fit, in accordance with its rules and the law, and him the said Edward R. Scott, and him the said John Duffy, in his custody to safely keep, until they shall severally be discharged by the order of this Assembly, or otherwise disposed of."

I have arrested the said Edward R. Scott and the said John Duffy, and now present the said Edward R. Scott and the said John Duffy before the bar of the House.

Dated at the Capitol, in the city of Albany, this 18th day of March, 1878.

CHARLES A. ORR,

Sergeant-at-Arms of the Assembly.

Mr. Speaker, addressing Edward R. Scott, said: Edward R. Scott, you are presented before the bar of this House, charged, according to the resolution just read, at the time specified in the report, of violating the rules of the House in refusing to appear before a committee. What have you to say ?

Mr. Scott replied : I meant no disrespect to the House. I was up here once before and testified before the honorable committee. I was afterward served with a subpoena to appear in New York. I did not appear simply because after I was up here before, I was incarcerated in the city prison in New York for two weeks, and I was suffering from rheumatism, and I supposed I would be intimidated again, as I was before, and therefore I did not appear, under advice of counsel. I meant no disrespect to the House, or to the honorable body present. When Mr. Orr, the Sergeant-at-Arms, came after me, I surrendered myself to him. I had no disrespect for the mandate of the House.

Mr. Alvord moved that Edward R. Scott remain in the custody of the Sergeant-at-Arms until he shall have testified before the committee on privileges and elections.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to said motion, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. Speaker then addressed John Duffy, and asked him as follows : "You are brought before the bar of the House for refusing to appear before a committee of this House. What have you to say ?"

Mr. Duffy then stated his excuse in words following :

My excuse is that I am the assistant jailer of the Westchester county jail. At the time fixed for my appearance as a witness the sheriff was absent, and the deputy sheriff and jailer were also absent. I was therefore compelled to choose between a disobedience of the subpoena and a desertion of my post. In view of the responsibility that rested upon me, and of the danger to the public peace and welfare involved in my leaving the jail, thereby enabling the prisoners to escape, I determined that there was but one course for me to pursue, and that that was to stand in the breach. My disobedience of the subpoena was from no desire to disobey it, but simply from my sense of duty to the public and to my superior officers, who had devolved upon me the responsibility for the safe keeping of the prisoners placed in my charge.

Mr. Bergen moved that the excuse of John Duffy be received, and he be purged of his contempt, and that said Duffy be discharged from the custody of the Sergeant-at-Arms on condition that he appear before the committee on privileges and elections to-morrow (Tuesday, March 19th), to which said John Duffy agreed.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to said motion, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. Alvord offered, for the consideration of the House, a resolution in the words following:

Resolved, By the Assembly of the State of New York, that it is wise statesmanship for Congress to adopt the most efficient policy to extend our trade and commerce with all the nations of the earth, and especially to give to our farmers and manufacturers new markets for their products, and to restore the carrying trade of the oceans once more to our own ships, and give employment again to our own seamen; and in the opinion of this Assembly, in no better way can this be done, than by paying American steamship lines the same compensation for mail service that is paid to our railroad lines. Let the policy be at once adopted, and steamship lines would rapidly increase; would receive the profits of our carrying trade; would take our flour and corn, our beef and pork, our butter and cheese, and our manufactured articles to the peoples of the world; and would return with the products of other lands, that we need for our mills and factories and for our own consumption, and in this way largely extend our markets, and add very much to the wealth of the people by starting the country on a new career of prosperity. To pay for mail service on water, to steamships, the same as on land, to railroad companies, is simply justice. The more speedy the mail facilities between this and other countries, the larger will be our trade and commerce and our exchange of products with those countries. We commend this matter, as of great importance, to our Senators and representatives in Congress.

Debate arising thereon,

Ordered, That said resolution be laid upon the table.

Resolved, That the Clerk of this House be and he is hereby directed to turn over to the committee on civil divisions, all papers pertaining to Assembly bill No. 612, introduced by Mr. Decker in 1875, entitled "An act to alter the boundary lines between the towns of Davenport and Meredith, in the county of Delaware."

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to said resolutions, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. Griggs offered, for the consideration of the House, a resolution in the words following :

Whereas, The Superintendent of the New Capitol has advertised for bids or proposals to do work and furnish materials for the completion of the north center of the New Capitol, and such proposals have been made by various parties, in due form, among others, there being bids on proposals for the carpenter and cabinet work, which bids were opened on the nineteenth instant, at a meeting of the board of Commissioners of the New Capitol, and said Commissioners proceeded to award the said contract for the carpenter and cabinet work, to a bidder who was not the lowest bidder by over $1,000, contrary, as it is alleged, to the statute in such case made and provided.

Resolved, That it be referred to the committee on the judiciary to report to this House, whether the law does or does not require such contracts to be let to the lowest bidder, and if they report that it does not, to report a bill amendatory, or otherwise requiring absolutely the letting of such contracts to the lowest bidder or bidders.

Debate arising thereon,

Ordered, That said resolution be laid upon the table.

Mr. Havens called from the table a resolution, previously offered by him, in the words following :

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the people of the State of New York, speaking through their representatives in the Legislature, do hereby protest to the honorable the Congress of the United States against the passage of the bill introduced by Senator Sargent, whereby it is proposed to transfer the control of the life-saving service on the seaboard and the lake coasts from the Treasury to the Navy Department, believing such transfer to be unjust to the officials who have brought said service to its present stage of efficiency ; unwise by reason of its necessarily disorganizing effect upon the crews, and inexpedient as substituting inexperienced and perhaps incompetent persons in the places of those who, by occupation and local experience, have become qualified to man the surf-boats and efficiently discharge the other duties of the service. We therefore request our representatives in senate and congress to oppose the transfer.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to said resolution, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk deliver said resolution to the Senate, and request their concurrence therein.

Mr. McDonough offered, for the consideration of the House, a resolution in the words following:

Resolved, That this House adjourn to-day at one o'clock, to meet again on Monday evening at eight o'clock.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to said resolution, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. Seebacher offered, for the consideration of the House, a resolution in the words following:

Resolved, That the board of education of the city of New York, be requested to furnish forthwith the following information:

1st. Under the rule recently adopted by said board, to wit, that "all persons employed as principals of grammar or of primary departments and schools, who shall have been so employed for a period of fourteen years, shall be paid not less than the following annual salaries, if approved by a majority vote of all the members of the board of education. For principals of male departments, twenty-five hundred dollars ($2,500); for principals of female departments, nineteen hundred dollars ($1,900); for principals of primary departments and schools, seventeen hundred and fifty dollars ($1,750). How many principals of schools in the city of New York come under this fourteen years service clause?

2d. What is the average attendance of pupils in their respective schools?

3d. Why is the distinction made between principals who have served for fourteen years, and vice-principals and teachers who have served for a like period, but are not similarly protected as to their salaries?

Debate arising thereon,

Ordered, That said resolution be laid upon the table.

Mr. Fish offered, for the consideration of the House, a resolution in the words following:

Resolved, That the Auditor of the Canal Department be requested to inform this House the amount of money paid from the State treasury, and the parties to whom paid, during the last ten years, for any patent or other experiment for steam towage on the canals.

Mr. Terry, from the committee on privileges and elections, to which was referred the petition of Charles H. Duell, claiming the seat of John Clark as member of Assembly from the Thirteenth Assembly district of the city of New York, presented the following report :

To the Honorable the Assembly of the State of New York :

Your committee have held several meetings in the cities of Albany and New York, have taken a large amount of testimony, examined over 120 witnesses, and listened to long and exhaustive arguments from the counsel for the contestant and sitting member.

This contest turns upon the allegations and specifications contained in the petition of the contestant, and the answer of the sitting member that the sitting member and the contestant had cast and counted for them a large number of illegal ballots by persons voting on fraudulent naturalization papers.

There were three candidates for Assembly in this district, John Clark (Tammany Democrat), Charles H. Duell (Republican and Anti-Tammany) and John D. McLean (Hayes Republican).

The vote, as counted and declared by the board of county canvassers, was as follows :

For John Clark.....	2,581
For Charles H. Duell.....	2,567
For John D. McLean.....	269
Scattering, blank and defective.....	26

Thus giving the sitting member over the contestant a plurality of 14 votes.

The evidence taken by your committee principally relates to the manner in which aliens were naturalized in various years, more especially in the Supreme and Superior Courts of the city of New York in the year 1868. We believe there is no evidence before us to sustain the allegations of illegal naturalizations in any year, or in any courts other than in the Supreme and Superior Courts of the city of New York during the year 1868, and we therefore confine our report to the evidence relating to that year.

The question is not a new one. In this State, in the year 1868, there occurred a series of frauds upon the elective franchise so unusual and overwhelming as to challenge the attention of the country, and in the light of subsequent developments, we think no one will now be found to defend them.

These frauds have been investigated in several election cases, the most notable being those of Van Wick agst. Greene, in the 41st Congress, and the case of McLeod agst. Halpine, in the Assembly of 1869.

The evidence in this case shows that 97 persons voted in this district, at the late election, whose only right to vote was based upon certificates of naturalization, granted by the Supreme and Superior Courts of the city of New York, in 1868. Of that number, 64 voted for the sitting member, 24 for the contestant; and that the balance should not be counted against either party to this contest.

The evidence in regard to the method of naturalization, adopted by those courts in 1868, does not conflict.

It is undisputed that 10,000 certificates of naturalization were issued in about two weeks by one judge in the Supreme Court, and that 18,000 were issued in the Superior Court during the month of October.

The testimony also shows that a large number of certificates of naturalization were granted to parties, whose names, even, do not appear on the court lists.

The evidence in regard to these particular cases, shows that it was very easy for an alien to be changed into a citizen in those courts in that year. Witnesses were readily obtained to swear that the applicant had been in the United States and the State of New York the requisite time, and had demeaned himself as a good citizen.

In these naturalization papers, appear several times the familiar names of James Goff, John Ward, Garratt Dillon, James McCabe, John Moran and Owen Gannon.

Under these circumstances, it is not strange that ten of the witnesses before your committee, were not acquainted with the names of these pretended witnesses, or had known them a shorter time than the law required.

Of the 97 persons voting upon these certificates, 66 are claimed to have come to this country before they were 18 years of age, and, therefore, could be naturalized on what are known as Minor Papers.

When we come to the proof, and examine these witnesses, 37 of the number admit this was not true.

Four testify that they had not lived five years in the United States, at the time of the alleged naturalization, as required by law; and two that they never went to court for their papers; and two that they were never sworn in court.

At least 30 of the affidavits found on file in the clerk's office are either signed when the evidence of the parties themselves shows that they could not write, or that the signatures are not theirs, or they are signed by mark when the party could write.

But we deem it unnecessary to enlarge upon the facts to show how utterly the law was disregarded in the issuing of these illegal certificates, as the result at which we have arrived would not be materially changed thereby.

There is a fatal defect which vitiates all these certificates, viz: that there are no minutes or records showing any proceeding in naturalization, or any judgment of the court in any of the cases before us in either of those courts in the year 1868.

The courts of the United States and of this State have laid down the following as the law in naturalization proceedings: That the proceeding is a judicial one; that the powers conferred upon and exercised by the courts are judicial and not ministerial; that the determination of the court is the judgment of the court; and that the right of citizenship can only be conferred by the judgment of the court. Hence it follows that the certificates are void, there being no record of any proceeding or judgment of the court. The only certificate known to the law is a certified copy of the record of the naturalization, and if a certificate is issued where no record exists, the certificate clearly has no validity or life.

The affidavits on file in the courts are, aside from their falsity, of no validity to sustain the alleged proceedings, for the law does not authorize the court to receive affidavits, and such affidavits are incompetent and inadmissible as evidence. No one making such an affidavit could be convicted of perjury, no matter how false it might be. Because some of these men may have been entitled to naturalization, is no reason why the fraudulent manner in which these certificates were issued should be overlooked. For surely it is not the right to naturalization, but naturalization itself, awarded by the proper judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction, and this alone, that gives citizenship, and with it a right to vote under the Constitution and laws.

Your committee have no doubt that in contested election cases, legislative bodies have an absolute power to inquire into the right of a party to vote, when that right is based upon an alleged certificate of naturalization, and decisions in the Congress of the United States and the Senate and Assembly of this State, sustain the position.

If the naturalization of persons, who desire to become citizens of this country, is to be conducted according to law, both National and State, then not one of these men, who are shown to have voted in this district, on certificates of naturalization, issued in the Supreme and Superior Courts of the city of New York, in 1868, were naturalized according to law.

It is essential for the protection of both the government and aliens, that the safeguards which the laws of the United States have thrown around the granting of the right of American citizenship, should be preserved; and so believing, your committee have rejected the votes cast by these men.

In the face of the facts, and the law, it is impossible to arrive at any different conclusion.

And your committee find that the sitting member now occupies his seat in the Assembly of the State of New York, by virtue of votes cast by those who were not legally entitled to vote. That 64 votes should be deducted from the vote allowed by the board of canvassers for John Clark; and that 24 votes should be deducted from the votes allowed by the board of canvassers for Charles H. Duell. The result will be to give a majority of 26 for Charles H. Duell.

Your committee therefore find that John Clark is not entitled to the seat he now occupies in this House, and recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That Charles H. Duell was duly elected member of Assembly from the Thirteenth Assembly district of the city of New York, at the election held therein on the 6th day of November, 1877, and that he is entitled to the seat now occupied by John Clark.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

To the Assembly :

The bill entitled "An act to amend section 1, title 1, chapter 9, part 3 of the Revised Statutes, entitled 'Of the writ of habeas corpus and certiorari in certain cases,' " having been returned by the Governor to the Senate with the accompanying message, in writing, containing his objections thereto, the President thereupon put the question, "Shall this bill become a law, notwithstanding the objections of the Governor?" and it was decided in the affirmative, two-thirds of all the Senators elected voting in favor thereof. Said bill and message were ordered to be transmitted to the Assembly :

STATE OF NEW YORK — EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, }
ALBANY, March 19, 1878. }

To the Senate :

I return, without approval, Senate bill No. 74, entitled "An act to amend section 1, article 1, title 1, chapter 9 of part 3 of the Revised Statutes, entitled 'Of the writ of habeas corpus and certiorari in certain cases.'"

The rule which prevents persons convicted of an infamous crime from testifying in courts of justice is as old as the foundations of our law. It was established in wisdom, and has been approved by experience. Its theory is that a person who has been found guilty of murder, robbery, arson, rape, false swearing and other atrocious crimes, is not worthy of belief, and that testimony thus born of infamy should not be heard to contradict the word of honest men, and that he who had criminally taken the life or the property of one citizen should not be allowed to swear away the rights of another. The disqualification of this law has long protected the rights of the innocent from the perjury of the guilty.

But among the many wise and well settled prescriptions of our law swept away by the thirteen chapters of the new Code of Procedure, which went into effect on the first of September last, this disability of the infamous was abrogated. Section 832 of the Code removes the disability, and places the convicts in all our prisons on the same level with the best men who are called as witnesses in the courts. Beside the purest of citizens the worst of felons may now demand that his testimony be taken in every court of justice. It is not pertinent that I should discuss this innovation further than to make clear the faults of the bill herewith returned. Under the section of the Revised Statutes which this bill proposes to amend, the courts have no power to take, on habeas corpus, from the walls of a prison a condemned felon during the term for which he has been sentenced, so that despite the section of the new Code which I have quoted, the courts have still no power, under the old statute, to take possession of a convict to secure his evidence. The present bill removes that disability of the courts. If it be made a law, every county and supreme court judge, every judge of any local court of record, may order any or all prisoners confined in prison, penitentiary or jail, under sentence of death for murder or arson, under sentence of life imprisonment for manslaughter, rape, perjury, robbery or other crime, to be taken from their cells to the remotest limits of the State, and there be held at pleasure of the court to testify in any trivial suit between two private parties for their own accommodation. I believe that this is not only unwise, but extremely wrong. The prisons and penitentiaries of our State contain over ten thousand convicts. At least one-half of these are persons whose liberty is dangerous. Many hundreds are under life sentences for the vilest and most brutal crimes. The effort to convey them on long journeys through all parts of the State will inevitably lead to many escapes, and will endanger the lives of those who have them in charge or such as may assist them. Yet by the terms of this bill, whenever an apparent case is made, the court is bound to order such a bringing of the felon as a witness. It may take the murderer from his cell the day before his execution. It may call any number of convicts from our prisons at once. It may subject the officers of our penal institutions to all the dangers of escapes, revolts, conflicts between convict and keeper, not within the secure walls of a prison, but in public places, highways and conveyances. At the best, and even if this danger be avoided, the bringing of the vilest felons from their prison cells into court and on to the witness stand, and returning them again from the witness stand to the prison cell, cannot be regarded otherwise than as a pollution of the very temples of justice.

I can not imagine any necessity for such an extraordinary innovation. I have never known the due administration of justice to be impeded for the want of testimony from the prisons and penitentiaries. It is true that there are some persons in prison who ought not to be there, and who are not utterly vile and unworthy. In all such cases, where their testimony is absolutely necessary to prevent a failure of justice, the Governor has the power, and has uniformly exercised it, of granting a pardon with restoration to citizenship, which enables the witness to appear upon the stand under more favorable circumstances than would surround him if he were brought from prison into court to be taken thence to prison again. In my judgment, the efficiency and purity of the administration of justice in our courts will be best promoted by leaving the law in these respects as it has stood for ages.

L. ROBINSON.

On motion of Mr. Gilbert, and by unanimous consent, said bill and message were laid upon the table.

A message from the Senate was received and read informing of concurrence in the passage of the bills entitled as follows :

"An act in relation to the officers and medical staff of Willard Asylum for the insane."

"An act to amend chapter 971 of the laws of 1867, entitled 'An act for the incorporation of co-operative and industrial unions.'"

Ordered, That the Clerk deliver said bills to the Governor.

The Senate returned the bill entitled "An act to provide for the payment of bonds heretofore issued by the village of Middletown, in the county of Orange, and to create a sinking fund therefor," with a message that they had concurred in the passage of the same, with the following amendments :

Section 1, line 14, after the word "laws" insert the word "of."

Section 2, line 7, after the word "of," strike out the words "not less than."

The amendments having been read,

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would concur in said amendments, and it was determined in the affirmative, a majority of all the members elected to the Assembly voting in favor thereof, and three-fifths being present, as follows :

Ordered, That the Clerk deliver said bill to the Senate, and request their concurrence therein.

Mr. Alvord moved to lay this order of business (third reading of bills) upon the table, for the purpose of taking up order of business, general orders.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to said motion, and it was determined in the affirmative, two-thirds of all the members present voting in favor thereof.

The House then resolved itself into a committee of the whole on the bills entitled as follows :

"An act to enable the Cayadutta Plankroad Company in the town of Johnstown, in the county of Fulton, to extend and continue its corporate existence."

"An act to amend section 1 of chapter 381 of the Laws of 1873, entitled 'An act for the preservation of fish in waters lying within or bordering upon the counties of Schuyler, Steuben, Chemung, Seneca, Yates, and Ontario.'"

"An act to incorporate the Black River Improvement Company."

And after some time spent therein, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and Mr. Waring, from said committee, reported in favor of the passage of the first named bill, with amendments, and the title amended so as to read "An act to amend chapter 135, Laws of 1876, entitled 'An act to authorize plankroad and turnpike companies formed under and by virtue of an act entitled An act to provide for the incorporation of companies to construct plankroads, and of companies to construct turnpike roads,' passed May 7, 1847, to extend their charter or corporate existence," which report was agreed to, and said bill ordered engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. Waring, from the same committee, also reported progress on the two last named bills, and asked and obtained leave to sit again.

Mr. Fish moved that the Assembly bill entitled "An act to amend chapter 436 of the Laws of 1877, entitled 'An act in relation to county treasurers," be recommitted to the committee on affairs of cities, with instructions to strike out the enacting clause.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to said motion, and it was determined in the affirmative.

The House again resolved itself into a committee of the whole on the bills entitled as follows:

"An act releasing the interest of the people of the State of New York in certain real estate to Christian Spiess."

"An act supplemental to chapter 421 of the Laws of 1877, entitled 'An act to further amend chapter 721 of the Laws of 1871, entitled An act to amend and consolidate the several acts relating to the preservation of moose, wild deer, birds and fish.'"

"An act to provide for maintaining the solvency of life insurance companies, and protecting the rights of policyholders."

And after some time spent therein, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and Mr. Sawyer, from said committee, reported in favor of the passage of the first and second named bills, which report was agreed to, and said bills ordered engrossed for a third reading.

Mr. Sawyer, from the same committee, also reported in favor of the passage of the last named bill, with amendments, which report was agreed to, and the same ordered engrossed for a third reading.

By unanimous consent,

Mr. Lowing introduced a bill entitled "An act to legalize the official acts and proceedings of Alanson King, Andrew Sheldon and Harvey Wellman as commissioners of excise of the town of Perry, Wyoming county," which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read the second time, and referred to the committee on the judiciary.

Mr. Strack, from the committee on privileges and elections, presented a minority report in relation to the contested seat of John Clark, in the words following:

To the Assembly:

The undersigned, a minority of the Committee on Privileges and Elections, to which was referred the petition of Charles H. Duell, claiming the seat now occupied by John Clark, respectfully report that they are unable to concur in the report made by the majority of said committee.

The petition of Mr. Duell made many charges of gross fraud and irregularity. It charged that the inspectors of election in the 24th election district were drunk, and did not honestly canvass the votes; and illegally transferred votes from one candidate to another; that in the 5th election district one vote was cast for John Clark by a person who voted on a registered name other than his own, and that a person who was registered and would have voted for Duell was improperly and wrongfully prevented from voting by the inspectors; that in the 16th election district the inspectors allowed John Clark a ballot from which his name had been erased; that in most of the election districts, and especially in twelve named, at least 60 votes were cast and counted for Clark by persons not lawfully naturalized, or who had obtained possession of false, forged, counterfeit and fraudulent certificates of naturalization.

Upon the hearing all these charges were abandoned except the charge that votes were cast and counted for Clark by persons not lawfully naturalized. There was no proof nor any pretense of any fraudulent voting, repeating, intimidation, false counting, or manipulation of returns.

There was no proof nor any pretense that any person voted who did not believe himself entitled to vote or who had not the usual evidence of citizenship.

We start therefore with the undisputed proposition that the election and the count were in every respect fair and honest. The sole question is whether Mr. Clark should be unseated by reason of proof that any who voted for him were not legally naturalized. Upon this question we differ from the majority report, both as to the facts and as to the law.

First, as to the facts. It was proved that 114 men voted upon certificates of naturalization; of this number

Fifteen say they voted for Clark or think they did; eight say they voted for Duell or think they did; twenty-four say they voted the "Tammany Ticket"; thirty say they voted the "Republican" ticket; five say they voted the "Democratic" ticket; three say they voted the "Anti-Tammany" ticket; twenty-nine say they cannot tell how they voted.

It must be remembered that Clark was the "Tammany" candidate, and that Duell was not only the Republican candidate but also the "Anti-Tammany" candidate, and that votes cast for the democratic ticket were not necessarily cast for John Clark.

The evidence therefore entirely fails to support the statement in the majority report that of naturalized voters, "sixty-four voted for the sitting member, twenty-four for the contestant." It shows nothing which should unseat Clark even though it were conceded that the 114 were not legal voters.

Second, as to the law. The undersigned cannot assent to the position taken by the majority. It is in the judgment of the undersigned at war with the decisions of the courts as well as with common sense and common honesty. In regard to the men who voted on certificates of naturalization, it is undisputed that all but two actually went to court, made the application in good faith, were entitled to naturalization, and in good faith received certificates of naturalization. The two who did not go to court but obtained their papers through "a friend," voted for Duell. They all took the oath of allegiance and renunciation. Every one of them had in his possession a certificate under the seal of a court of record, reciting that he had appeared in court and applied to it to be admitted as a citizen, and that "thereupon it was ordered by the said court that the said applicant be admitted, and he was accordingly admitted by the said court to be a citizen of the United States." This certificate each man had voted on without objection for ten years.

The majority report would disfranchise these men on two alleged grounds. 1. That there were irregularities in the proceedings before the court. 2. That there was no formal judgment or record.

But it has been repeatedly decided by the Supreme Court of the United States and by all the courts of this State, that a certificate of naturalization cannot be impeached on such grounds. In each case there was an application to the court, evidence was taken before the court, the court decided the applicant to be entitled to naturalization, and thereupon the oath of allegiance, etc., was administered to the applicant, and a certificate issued. The written evidence of this, in addition to the certificate issued, was in the Superior court, the affixing of the initials of the judge to the application; in the Supreme court, a formal order. It was held by the Supreme Court of the United States in 1810 that "the oath, when taken, confers upon the applicant the rights of a citizen, and amounts to a judgment of the court for his admission to those rights." Campbell v. Gordon, 6 Cranch, 176.

This case was decided under the law of 1795, but its provisions did not, in this respect, differ from those of the law of 1802, which was in force in 1868, and it has been uniformly followed and approved by every court in every State which has passed upon the question. It would be hard indeed if a man entitled to citizenship, who applied to a competent court, was there examined, was admitted to take the oath, and received his certificate, could be disfranchised ten years afterwards by reason of the neglect of the clerk of the court to keep his records in proper shape. The record of a judgment is not the judgment itself. This was held by the Supreme Court of the United States in the case above cited. The record is only evidence of the judgment. In case of its absence by reason of loss or otherwise, the judgment may be proved by other evidence. The majority rely upon the decisions in Van Wyck v. Green, in the Forty-first Congress, and of McLeod v. Halpine, in the Assembly of 1869. In fact, both these decisions were based upon alleged evidence of fraud. Both were extremely partisan decisions. The writer of the opinion in the Van Wyck case (Butler of Tennessee) was afterwards convicted of selling cadetships, and unanimously censured by the House. The undersigned cannot believe that this Assembly will, upon such authority, reverse the decisions of all the courts in the country and permit the right of citizenship, once acquired in good faith, to be overturned upon such flimsy pretexts.

Another consideration which your committee deem of great importance is, that not a particle of evidence was offered to prove, nor indeed was it at any time alleged, that any effort was made by the sitting member to secure the naturalization or the vote of any of these pretended illegal voters. They exercised their right to vote according to their own judgment, and your committee believe that on election day the contestant would have been very willing to have had every one of these so-called illegal votes cast for him, notwithstanding the manner of the naturalization, and would have then ridiculed the idea that, for reasons now urged by him, they were not entitled to vote.

We therefore respectfully recommend the adoption of the following resolution :

Resolved, That John Clark was duly elected member of Assembly from the 13th Assembly district of the city of New York, at the election held therein on the 6th day of November, 1877, and that he is entitled to retain the seat which he now occupies.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Dated March 27, 1878.

Ordered, That the Clerk return said bill to the Senate, with a message informing that the Assembly have concurred in their amendment.

Mr. Speaker presented a communication from the comptroller of the city of New York, in response to a resolution of the Assembly, relative to the finances of said city; which was laid upon the table and ordered printed.

(See Doc No. 100.)

Mr. Skinner moved that said communication be referred to the committee on affairs of cities.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to said motion, and it was determined in the affirmative.

Mr. Speaker presented a communication from the Auditor of the Canal Department, in response to a resolution of the Assembly, relative to the amount of money expended in experiments for steam towage on the canals; which was read and referred to the committee on canals.

Also, resolutions and report of the Canal Board for the concurrence of the Legislature; which were read and referred to the committee on canals.

Also, a memorial from the National party; which was read and referred to the committee on affairs of cities.

Mr. Fish rose to a question of privilege, and read an extract from the New York Times, as follows:

"The rumors current a week ago about the bargain with Kelly for the votes of the Tammany senators were undoubtedly well founded. Last night, when Smyth's chances looked blue, it was reported that two of the Tammany senators had weakened and were going to vote for removal. That astute and high-minded statesman, Hamilton Fish, jr., chairman of the committee on cities, on learning this fact called his committee together early this morning and directed the clerk to make out a favorable report of the bill making the comptroller's office in New York elective. When the Assembly met the bill was reported, and notice of the fact was immediately communicated to the Tammany senators sitting on the trial of Smyth up stairs. Assurances were at once given that they would vote as desired on the Smyth issue, whereupon the nimble Fish flopped back again into the Kelly pool, and had his elective controller bill recommitted to the committee on cities, where it will doubtless be allowed to rest for the remainder of the session, together with all other legislative projects designed to curtail the power of the Tammany chief. Fish was one of the first to rush up stairs after the verdict and congratulate Pomeroy on his brilliant speech, which must have been very flattering to the Auburn senator."

Mr. Fish then said :

MR. SPEAKER—I pronounce the statements herein utterly devoid of truth, and I believe that the correspondent who wrote them knew at the time that they were absolutely false. There is not one word of truth in regard to the statement as to the comptroller's bill. To-morrow I shall move that this matter be referred to the committee on privileges and elections, with instructions to make the correspondent who sent this communication to New York, show what truth there was in it, and if he cannot prove that statement, that he be expelled from this floor. It is time that this House should assert its dignity. The other day, for a much less offense, within three minutes they expelled the correspondent of another paper. Now, Mr. Speaker, I have had nothing to do whatever with this trial of Mr. Smyth. I did not regard it as my duty to interfere, nor did I think it would be proper for me to urge my personal views on any member of that jury. I regard this interference of the New York papers in this trial, trying to browbeat Senators and dictate to the Senators what action they should take, as extremely indelicate and unjustifiable. I believe that every man who was there and voted on the trial, voted as a sense of duty, and was not led by any outside inducement. This journal and its correspondent for the last year have not ceased to attack me, owing to a disagreement which we had in relation to some New York bills last winter; and when the Times sought to make me its abject slave last winter in regard to city measures, and I refused to follow them, from that time to this it would appear as if the correspondent had been told what he was to state in regard to me, and to black-mail me on every occasion. Now I say that the House should take some action in regard to this matter. [Mr. Fish explained the action of the committee and also of himself on the comptroller's bill, stating that it was referred back to the committee at the request of Mr. Brooks, in which statement he was substantiated by Mr. Brooks.]

Mr. Fish moved to postpone the consideration of his question of privilege until to-morrow morning immediately after the reading of the journal.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to said motion, and it was determined in the affirmative, two-thirds of all the members present voting in favor thereof.

The committee on public printing, to which was referred the resolution offered by Mr. Fish, on March 27th, as follows :

"Whereas, There is great delay in the placing of bills on the files after they have been reported by the committees of the House; therefore,

“Resolved, That the committee be directed to inquire into the matter, and report to the House what steps are necessary to expedite the printing of the bills after they have been reported to the House,” respectfully

REPORT :

That they have carefully inquired into the matter referred to in the above resolution, and find that there has been no great delay in the placing of bills upon the files of the House after being reported from committees, but that with the exception of slight and unavoidable detentions, caused by an unusual number of reports from committees, the work referred to is promptly and satisfactorily performed.

Whereas, It is stated by the president of the Wine and Spirit Traders' Society of the city of New York, that sixty millions of dollars are expended each year in the bar-rooms of the city of New York, in some 8,000 inns, taverns and saloons ; and

Whereas, A direct tax upon this enormous consumption of spirituous and malt liquors would result in adding several hundred thousand dollars, if not some millions of dollars, to the city treasury ; and

Whereas, It is just and equitable that the consumers of alcoholic and other liquors should contribute largely and directly to the support of the government ; be it, therefore,

Resolved, That the committee on cities be requested to examine and report upon the expediency of substituting, in the city of New York, what is known as the "Moffat law of Virginia," for the New York law of 1857, and all other laws regulating the sale of liquors ; said Moffat law imposing a tax of two and one-half cents upon each alcoholic drink, and one-half cent upon each glass of ale, beer or porter, with a specific license to sell the same, and with the penalty of imprisonment or fine, or both, for each violation of the law, whether on the part of officials neglecting their duty, or on the part of persons licensed to register their sales ; the chief objects of this inquiry being to reduce both the taxes and debt of the city of New York, and at the same time to promote the cause of temperance.

Thus giving the sitting member over the contestant a plurality of 14 votes.

The evidence taken by your committee principally relates to the manner in which aliens were naturalized in various years, more especially in the Supreme and Superior Courts of the city of New York in the year 1868. We believe there is no evidence before us to sustain the allegations of illegal naturalizations in any year, or in any courts other than in the Supreme and Superior Courts of the city of New York during the year 1868, and we therefore confine our report to the evidence relating to that year.

The question is not a new one. In this State, in the year 1868, there occurred a series of frauds upon the elective franchise so unusual and overwhelming as to challenge the attention of the country, and in the light of subsequent developments, we think no one will now be found to defend them.

These frauds have been investigated in several election cases, the most notable being those of Van Wick agst. Greene, in the 41st Congress, and the case of McLeod agst. Halpine, in the Assembly of 1869.

The evidence in this case shows that 97 persons voted in this district, at the late election, whose only right to vote was based upon certificates of naturalization, granted by the Supreme and Superior Courts of the city of New York in 1868. Of that number, 64 voted for the sitting member, 24 for the contestant; and that the balance should not be counted against either party to this contest.

The evidence in regard to the method of naturalization, adopted by those courts in 1868, does not conflict.

It is undisputed that 10,000 certificates of naturalization were issued in about two weeks by one judge in the Supreme Court, and that 18,000 were issued in the Superior Court during the month of October.

The testimony also shows that a large number of certificates of naturalization were granted to parties, whose names, even, do not appear on the court lists.

The evidence in regard to these particular cases, shows that it was very easy for an alien to be changed into a citizen in those courts in that year. Witnesses were readily obtained to swear that the applicant had been in the United States and the State of New York the requisite time, and had demeaned himself as a good citizen.

In these naturalization papers appear several times the familiar names of James Goff, John Ward, Garratt Dillon, James McCabe, John Moran and Owen Gannon.

Under these circumstances, it is not strange that ten of the witnesses before your committee, were not acquainted with the names of these pretended witnesses, or had known them a shorter time than the law required.

Of the 97 persons voting upon these certificates, 66 are claimed to have come to this country before they were 18 years of age, and, therefore, could be naturalized on what are known as Minor Papers.

When we come to the proof, and examine these witness, 37 of the number admit this was not true.

Four testify that they had not lived five years in the United States, at the time of the alleged naturalization, as required by law; and two that they never went to court for their papers; and two that they were never sworn in court.

At least 30 of the affidavits found on file in the clerk's office are either signed when the evidence of the parties themselves shows that they could not write, or that the signatures are not theirs, or they are signed by mark when the party could write.

But we deem it unnecessary to enlarge upon the facts to show how utterly the law was disregarded in the issuing of these illegal certificates, as the result at which we have arrived would not be materially changed thereby.

There is a fatal defect which vitiates all these certificates, viz.: that there are no minutes or records showing any proceeding in naturalization, or any judgment of the court in any of the cases before us in either of those courts in the year 1868.

The courts of the United States and of this State have laid down the following as the law in naturalization proceedings: That the proceeding is a judicial one; that the powers conferred upon and exercised by the courts are judicial and not ministerial; that the determination of the court is the judgment of the court; and that the right of citizenship can only be conferred by the judgment of the court. Hence it follows that the certificates are void, there being no record of any proceeding or judgment of the court. The only certificate known to the law is a certified copy of the record of the naturalization, and if a certificate is issued where no record exists, the certificate clearly has no validity or life.

The affidavits on file in the courts are, aside from their falsity, of no validity to sustain the alleged proceedings, for the law does not authorize the court to receive affidavits, and such affidavits are incompetent and inadmissible as evidence. No one making such an affidavit could be convicted of perjury, no matter how false it might be. Because some of these men may have been entitled to naturalization, is no reason why the fraudulent manner in which these certificate were issued should be overlooked. For surely it is not the right to naturalization, but naturalization itself, awarded by the proper judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction, and this alone, that gives citizenship, and with it a right to vote under the Constitution and laws.

Your committee have no doubt that in contested election cases, legislative bodies have an absolute power to inquire into the right of a party to vote, when that right is based upon an alleged certificate of naturalization, and decisions in the Congress of the United States and the Senate and Assembly of this State, sustain the position.

If the naturalization of persons, who desire to become citizens of this country, is to be conducted according to law, both National and State, then not one of these men, who are shown to have voted in this district, on certificates of naturalization, issued in the Supreme and Superior courts of the city of New York, in 1868, were naturalized according to law.

It is essential for the protection of both the government and aliens, that the safeguards which the laws of the United States have thrown around the granting of the right of American citizenship, should be preserved; and so believing, your committee have rejected the votes cast by these men.

In the face of these facts, and the law, it is impossible to arrive at any different conclusion.

And your committee find that the sitting member now occupies his seat in the Assembly of the State of New York, by virtue of votes cast by those who were not legally entitled to vote. That 64 votes should be deducted from the vote allowed by the board of canvassers for John Clark; and that 24 votes should be deducted from the votes allowed by the board of canvassers for Charles H. Duell. The result will be to give a majority of 26 for Charles H. Duell.

Your committee therefore find that John Clark is not entitled to the seat he now occupies in this House, and recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That Charles H. Duell was duly elected member of Assembly from the Thirteenth Assembly district of the city of New York, at the election held therein, on the 6th day of November, 1877, and that he is entitled to the seat now occupied by John Clark.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Mr. Alvord moved to take a recess until half-past four o'clock this afternoon.

Mr. Speaker put the question whether the House would agree to said motion, and it was determined in the affirmative.

HALF - PAST FOUR O'CLOCK, P. M.

The House again met.

Mr. Speaker stated the pending question to be on agreeing to said minority report.

Mr. Grady called for the reading of said report in the words following:

To the Assembly:

The undersigned, a minority of the committee on privileges and Elections, to which was referred the petition of Charles H. Duell, claiming the seat now occupied by John Clark, respectfully report that they are unable to concur in the report made by the majority of said committee.

The petition of Mr. Duell made many charges of gross fraud and irregularity. It charged that the inspectors of election in the 24th election district were drunk, and did not honestly canvass the votes; and illegally transferred votes from one candidate to another; that in the 5th election district one vote was cast for John Clark by a person who voted on a registered name other than his own, and that a person who was registered and would have voted for Duell was improperly and wrongfully prevented from voting by the inspectors; that in the 16th election district the inspectors allowed John Clark a ballot from which his name had been erased; that in most of the election districts, and especially in twelve named, at least 60 votes were cast and counted for Clark by persons not lawfully naturalized, or who had obtained possession of false, forged, counterfeit and fraudulent certificates of naturalization.

Upon the hearing all these charges were abandoned except the charge that votes were cast and counted for Clark by persons not lawfully naturalized. There was no proof nor any pretense of any fraudulent voting, repeating, intimidation, false counting, or manipulation of returns.

There was no proof nor any pretense that any person voted who did not believe himself entitled to vote or who had not the usual evidence of citizenship.

We start therefore with the undisputed proposition that the election and the count were in every respect fair and honest. The sole question is whether Mr. Clark should be unseated by reason of proof that any who voted for him were not legally naturalized. Upon this question we differ from the majority report, both as to the facts and as to the law.

First, as to the facts. It was proved that 114 men voted upon certificates of naturalization; of this number

Fifteen say they voted for Clark or think they did; eight say they voted for Duell or think they they did; twenty-four say they voted the "Tammany Ticket"; thirty say they voted the "Republican" ticket; five say they voted the "Democratic" ticket; three say they voted the "Anti-Tammany" ticket; twenty-nine say they cannot tell how they voted.

It must be remembered that Clark was the "Tammany" candidate, and that Duell was not only the Republican candidate but also the "Anti-Tammany" candidate, and that votes cast for the democratic ticket were not necessarily cast for John Clark.

The evidence therefore entirely fails to support the statement in the majority report that of naturalized voters, "sixty-four voted for the sitting member, twenty-four for the contestant." It shows nothing which should unseat Clark even though it were conceded that the 114 were not legal voters.

Second, as to the law. The undersigned cannot assent to the position taken by the majority. It is in the judgment of the undersigned at war with the decisions of the courts as well as with common sense and common honesty. In regard to the men who voted on certificates of naturalization, it is undisputed that all but two actually went to court, made the application in good faith, were entitled to naturalization, and in good faith received certificates of naturalization. The two who did not go to court but obtained their papers through "a friend," voted for Duell. They all took the oath of allegiance and renunciation. Every one of them had in his possession a certificate under the seal of a court of record, reciting that he had appeared in court and applied to it to be admitted as a citizen, and that "thereupon it was ordered by the said court that the said applicant be admitted, and he was accordingly admitted by the said court to be a citizen of the United States." This certificate each man had voted on without objection for ten years.

The majority report would disfranchise these men on two alleged grounds. 1. That there were irregularities in the proceedings before the court. 2. That there was no formal judgment or record.

But it has been repeatedly decided by the Supreme Court of the United States and by all the courts of this State, that a certificate of naturalization cannot be impeached on such grounds. In each case there was an application to the court, evidence was taken before the court, the court decided the applicant to be entitled to naturalization, and thereupon the oath of allegiance, etc., was administered to the applicant, and a certificate issued. The written evidence of this, in addition to the certificate issued, was in the Superior Court, the affixing of the initials of the judge to the application, in the Supreme Court, a formal order. It was held by the Supreme Court of the United States in 1810 that "the oath, when taken, confers upon the applicant the rights of a citizen, and amounts to a judgment of the court for his admission to those rights." Campbell v. Gordon, 6 Cranch, 176.

This case was decided under the law of 1795, but its provisions did not, in this respect, differ from those of the law of 1802, which was in force in 1868, and it has been uniformly followed and approved by every court in every State which has passed upon the question. It would be hard indeed if a man entitled to citizenship, who applied to a competent court, was there examined, was admitted to take the oath, and received his certificate, could be disfranchised ten years afterwards by reason of the neglect of the clerk of the court to keep his records in proper shape. The record of a judgment is not the judgment itself. This was held by the Supreme Court of the United States in the case above cited. The record is only evidence of the judgment. In case of its absence by reason of loss or otherwise, the judgment may be proved by other evidence. The majority rely upon the decisions in Van Wyck v. Green, in the Forty-first Congress, and of McLeod v. Halpine, in the Assembly of 1869. In fact, both these decisions were based upon alleged evidence of fraud. Both were extremely partisan decisions. The writer of the opinion in the Van Wyck case (Butler of Tennessee) was afterwards convicted of selling cadetships, and unanimously censured by the House. The undersigned cannot believe that this Assembly will, upon such authority, reverse the decisions of all the courts in the country and permit the right of citizenship, once acquired in good faith, to be overturned upon such flimsy pretexts.

Another consideration which your committee deem of great importance is, that not a particle of evidence was offered to prove, nor indeed was it at any time alleged, that any effort was made by the sitting member to secure the naturalization or the vote of any of these pretended illegal voters. They exercised their right to vote according to their own judgment, and your committee believe that on election day the contestant would have been very willing to have had every one of these so-called illegal votes cast for him, notwithstanding the manner of the naturalization, and would have then ridiculed the idea that, for reasons now urged by him, they were not entitled to vote.

We therefore respectfully recommend the adoption of the following resolution :

Resolved, That John Clark was duly elected member of Assembly from the 13th Assembly district of the city of New York, at the election held therein on the 6th day of November, 1877, and that he is entitled to retain the seat which he now occupies.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

S. B. PIPER,
JOSEPH P. STRACK.

Whereupon Mr. Speaker declared that, pursuant to the resolution just adopted by the Assembly, Charles H. Duell was duly entitled to the seat now occupied by John Clark, as member of Assembly from the Thirteenth Assembly district of the county of New York.

The Senate sent for concurrence the bills entitled as follows :

"An act relative to the justices of the Supreme Court in the third judicial district," which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read the second time, and referred to the committee on the judiciary.

"An act relating to the State survey, and making appropriation therefor," which was read the first time, and by unanimous consent was also read the second time, and referred to the committee on ways and means.

The Senate sent for concurrence a resolution in the words following :

Whereas, The commercial interests of the whole country, and especially of the city and State of New York, demand the early improvement of Harlem river and Spuyten Duyvil creek, from the North river to the East river, through the Harlem kills, so as to afford a safe and convenient channel for vessels of all classes navigating the North river and bound for ports on the East river, Long Island sound, and in the eastern States, thus shortening the distance of the route between the North river and the waters of the sound, and a large portion of the city of Brooklyn lying on the East river, and between the North river and the eastern States, by more than twenty (20) miles around the Battery, of the tedious, expensive and unsafe navigation of the crowded waters that skirt the city, and thus avoiding the dangerous passage through Hell Gate; and,

Whereas, There is an act now pending in the Congress of the United States having for its object an appropriation towards the accomplishment of said purpose : and,

Whereas, A survey and estimate has already been made by the United States authorities, in which the cost of said work is shown and its importance fully set forth; and,

Whereas, The means for carrying on this work will be derived from the federal revenue, to which this State contributes in customs, giving out of its commerce over twenty-one millions of dollars, or nearly three-fourths of the total customs revenue, and the sum of nineteen millions of dollars of internal revenue, making a total of over one hundred and ten millions so contributed by this State; and,

Whereas, By the estimates of the United States engineers, it appears that but one million four hundred thousand dollars will be required to make a navigable channel, and the said sum is less than one and a half per cent upon the revenues contributed in one year by the State of New York to the United States; now, therefore, be it and it is hereby

Resolved (If the Assembly concur), That our Senators and Representatives in Congress be requested to use their influence to secure the pas-

Whereas, The committee on engrossed bills have failed and neglected to report said bill up to this time ; and,

Whereas, The commercial interests of the whole country, and especially of the city and State of New York, demand the early improvement of Harlem river and Spuyten Duyvil creek, from the North river to the East river, through the Harlem kills, so as to afford a safe and convenient channel for vessels of all classes navigating the North river and bound for ports on the East river, Long Island sound, and in the eastern States, thus shortening the distance of the route between the North river and the waters of the sound, and a large portion of the city of Brooklyn lying on the East river, and between the North river and the eastern States, by more than twenty (20) miles around the Battery, of the tedious, expensive and unsafe navigation of the crowded waters that skirt the city, and thus avoiding the dangerous passage through Hell Gate; and,

Whereas, There is an act now pending in the Congress of the United States having for its object an appropriation towards the accomplishment of said purpose: and,

Whereas, A survey and estimate has already been made by the United States authorities, in which the cost of said work is shown and its importance fully set forth; and,

Whereas, The means for carrying on this work will be derived from the federal revenue, to which this State contributes in customs, giving out of its commerce over twenty-one millions of dollars, or nearly three-fourths of the total customs revenue, and the sum of nineteen millions of dollars of internal revenue, making a total of over one hundred and ten millions so contributed by this State; and,

Whereas, By the estimates of the United States engineers, it appears that but one million four hundred thousand dollars will be required to make a navigable channel, and the said sum is less than one and a half per cent upon the revenues contributed in one year by the State of New York to the United States; now, therefore, be it and it is hereby

Resolved (If the Assembly concur), That our Senators and Representatives in Congress be requested to use their influence to secure the passage of the act now pending providing an appropriation for the furtherance of the improvement of Harlem river and Spuyten Duyvil creek.
